Seif, Hayes Honored At Grange Luncheon

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Editor

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) - For 127 years, the Pennsylvania State Grange has provided service to state rural citizens. And the celebration of this accomplishment was held at the annual legislative luncheon program Monday, during State Grange Day.

The featured speaker was James Seif, state secretary of the Department of Environmental Protection. Seif, along with Samuel Hayes Jr., secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, was part of the opening day ceremonies at the Pennsylvania Farm Show last January, when Gov. Tom Ridge unveiled the Growing Greener program for farmland protection and environmental initiatives to make Pennsylvania the most environmental sensitive state in the nation.

"Growing Greener is the stewardship of the environment," Seif said. "When I stood with Sec. Hayes at the Pennsylvania Farm Show to unveil this wonderful program initiated by the Ridge administration, we not only heard of the commitment to excellerate the preservation of farmland, the conservation of natural resources was also included.

" From 800 applications, we have recently awarded 250 grants for environmental projects from all parts of Pennsylvania including municipalities, environmental groups, and education institutions," Seif said. "These (Growing Greener) programs get money out to real people for real work in real watersheds in your communities. This is not money for environmental advocates who just tell us what to do. It's money for real environmental stewards like you to improve the environment."

Seif likened the new DEP as not a police force but more like an extension service.

Hayes brought greetings from Gov. Ridge and read a proclamation designating May 16-22 as Grange Week and May 8 as Grange Day in the state. He thanked the Grange for the help

Fungus Controls Pesky Beetles In Poultry House

ANDY ANDREWS

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — A fungus that literally pokes holes in poultry house beetle pests has proven about as effective as a commercially available insecticide.

That's the message delivered to about two dozen poultry producers and agri-industry representatives Monday afternoon at the Penn State-sponsored Poultry Management and Health Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim.

According to J. J. Arends. president of JABB of the Carolinas in Pine Level, N.C., the fungus, Beauveria bassiana, a pathogen of arthropods, works well to control beetles in poultry houses.

The fungus can be seen on dead insects that look like "little rice grains," said Arends.

When exposed to the fungus after three to five days, poultry house darkling and hide beetles are killed by the fungus or by pathogenic bacteria and viruses in the environment.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Poultry Science Club conducted its 10th annual awards banquet the end of April at the Ramada Inn in State College.

Club Advisor Dirk Wise said his group traveled to the Atlanta International Poultry Exposition to earn the U.S. Poultry Science Club of the Year and Scrapbook awards. The club competed against university poultry science clubs from all over the U.S.

At the banquet, several members came forward to accept club awards. Heather Lehman from Mechanicsburg earned the club's highest grade point average award. The highest grade point average in the poultry science major went to Tom Karr of Millersville. He also won the most active club member award. The most active new club member award went to Josh Elliott from Newburg.

The club elected Heather Lehman as president, Josh Elliot as vice president, Robert Miller of Huntingdon as secretary/treasurer, and Luke Zerby of Beavertown to the Ag Student Council.

Guest Speaker Bill Robinson of Kreamer Feed spoke about how the family company has evolved since founded in 1947.

"We're not a typical feed company," Robinson said. "We're providing a product to consumers based on whatever the consumer wants."

Kreamer Feeds provides conventional feeds as well as or-

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest was generally fair yet lacked the enthusiasm normally seen this time of year. Offerings were mixed and complications due to disruptions in shipping were noted. Bone-in breasts were difficult to locate and when found were commanding premiums. Boneless, skinless breasts were sometimes short to mostly adequate. All other items were at least adequate for current needs. Retail and distributive movement ranged moderate to good. The market tone was fully steady to firm on bone-in breasts, steady to fully steady on boneless, skinless breasts and about steady on the remainder of items.

Delmarva Broiler/ Fryer Market

ATLANTA, GA.
MAY 10, 2000
DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was mostly fair to moderate. Seller offerings were fully sufficient for current inquiry; however, some shipments continued to be disrupted as a result of computer problems. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights were mixed in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 68 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady. In the parts complex, breast items, particularly bone-in tightened and available offerings were held with confidence. Other items were adequate and in fairly good balance.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Trade reacted positively to ideas recent rainfall failed to replenish needed soil moisture in many places. Wheat bids climbed on some light export sales overnight. Wheat 2 to 15 cents higher. Corn 4 to 6 cents higher. Sorghum 10 cents higher. Soybeans 10 to 14 cents higher.

Recent rains across the Midwest and central US was not enough to take care of the overly dry areas planted in corn and beans. Forecasts are calling for warmer temperatures in the Midwest. South Korea bought a fair amount of corn overnight but nothing yet for soybeans. Soybean meal prices improved.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 15-21, 2000

FULL FLOWER MOON, MAY 18.

ST. DUNSTAN'S CIDER

St. Dunstan (c. 909-988), patron saint of goldsmiths and silversmiths, as well as a jeweler, painter, and blacksmith, was born near Glastonbury and educated by Irish monks. Besides his command of these arts, he was also a skilled brewer. One legend that followed him was that he tricked the Devil into putting a blight on apple trees to prevent the production of his rival drink, cider. According to the tale, the blight was accomplished in the three days of May 17, 18, and 19, the latter being St. Dunstan's Day. This was given as a reason for the cold blast that often comes at this time of year—similar to the stories of the "Three Chilly Saints" of the previous week.

Blossoms in May are not good, some say.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Cut timber at the full Moon to prevent warping and twisting.

CHEDDAR-AND-CHIVE WAFERS

2 cups grated Vermont Cheddar
1 cup (2 sticks) unsalted butter, softened
3 egg yolks
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
2 cups all-purpose flour

Combine first 5 ingredients and mix (or process in a food processor) until smooth. Add the flour and mix thoroughly, then shape into a cylinder and refrigerate, wrapped in waxed paper, for at least 2 hours. Preheat oven to 400°F and slice dough into ½-inch rounds. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets for 5 to 10 minutes. Serve warm with soup or salad, or as a cracker for smoked salmon or other appetizers.

Makes 3 dozen.

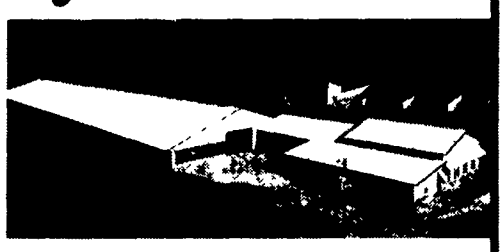
The Building you want. The Lease you need.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: As little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms from five to fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules are specially designed to match your cash flow.

First: Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost.
Then: Call your Telmark representative for your financing.

OPINION

We'll Starve!

The statement is true. People with their mouths full of food should not criticize the farmer who produces it. This becomes even more evident as unscientific environmental restrictions are placed on farmers.

We're talking about restrictions that have no scientific way to prove the need or basis to form regulations. The latest of the "can-you-believe-this" regulation proposal is a push to put a restriction on how much ammonia a chicken may emit.

Of course, if you could determine how much she does, you could make the restriction low enough so you could not have chickens on your farm. The next step would be to include pigs, cows, cats, dogs and then get rid of all people on the earth except those making the regulations.

The world should know that our nation has become great not in spite of farmers' ways, but because of it. They work hard, invest millions of dollars to do a good job of feeding people, and for generations have allowed the rest of us free to pursue other occupations and lifestyles. Farmers are a big part of everyone's existence. So, let's not regulate them out of business. To do so, is to starve.

Now Is The Time

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Sign Up For Programs

This week at the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's Agricultural Committee meeting, Jay Clark reminded everyone the deadlines for signing up for Act 319, Clean and Green, and farmland preservation program are approaching.

Clean and Green is Pennsylvania's preferential tax assessment law that allows agricultural land to be assessed at agricultural value rather than fair market value. The deadline for signing up for Clean and Green is June 1.

The farmland preservation program allows the landowner to sell the value of the development rights to the county. To participate, the farm must be enrolled in an agricultural security area. If your farm is not in an agricultural security area, you will need to petition your township supervisors to have your farm added to the township's agricultural security area. The deadline for signing up for the farmland preservation program is Sept. 1.

To Look At Soybean Fertilizer

The question: will nitrogen fertilizer improve soybean yields? seems to come up each year. Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent, reports researchers have looked at this question.

Tests were conducted during a two-year period at Dallastown and Felton. Overall, those plots with no nitrogen outyielded those with nitrogen. The average yield of all the plots with nitrogen was 42.25 bushels per acre compared to an average yield of 42.75 bushels per acre for the plots without nitrogen. The plots without nitrogen had a yield advantage of 0.5 bushels per acre.

Research has also shown that when soybeans are grown with nitrogen fertilizer added, they do not nodulate and produce their own nitrogen. This approach will result in very little nitrogen for the next crop.

To Adjust Hay Conditioners

The amount of time that hay needs to dry depends on many things, including air temperature, wind speed, relative humidity, and the equipment used to mow and condition the hay, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Hay producers cannot control the weather, but they can make sure their equipment is properly adjusted so the hay will dry as quickly as possible in order to achieve the goal of getting the hay baled before the next rainstorm. Hay conditioners are designed to crush or crimp the stems of the forage crop so the drying process is speeded up.

A properly adjusted conditioner may cut drying time in half compared to no conditioning of the hay. It speeds the drying of the stem so that the stems dry closely at the same rate as the leaves.

When properly adjusted, a conditioner will crimp the stem every three to four inches. There are two basic adjustments on most conditioners that will affect this action. They are the space between the two crimping rolls and the pressure on the rolls. The proper adjustment of the rollers is to be as close to each other as possible without touching each other. You should check this adjustment at several locations on the rolls. There should be enough pressure on the rolls to crimp the stems without damaging the leaves. Less than five percent of the leaves should show damage after going through the conditioner.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Countless, unseen details are often the only difference between mediocre and magnificent."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

OFTEN 'DOWN' BUT NEVER 'OUT'

Background Scripture:
2 Corinthians 4.
Devotional Reading:
2 Corinthians 6:1-10.

Recently I celebrated my 70th birthday. Unknown to me, in preparation for that event, my wife, Valere, asked a hundred or so of my friends and associates over the years to make a brief written contribution to a "Book of Memories" she was compiling for me. One of the responses came from a former parishioner who, when I had been his pastor 40-plus years ago, was a high school student.

On March 21, 2000, when she presented the book to me and I read these "memories," his letter in particular staggered me. Although I well remembered him as a fine young man active in leading our church's youth fellowship, I had no recollection of influencing his life in any special way. In his letter, however, he ticked off a long list of ways in which he said I had helped him — none of which I remember and closed with a tribute that I will never forget.

What made this testimony so special to me was that during that period of my life I was "fresh" out of seminary struggling in a church facing some seemingly overwhelming problems. Losing heart at an alarming rate, I was "down" and close to being "out."

BEYOND MY CAPACITIES. I was "down" because I had found myself confronted by conflicts and challenges which seemed to be quite beyond my capacities. I had held very high expectations of myself in the ministry. But, in that pastoral situation I began to realize slowly — too slowly, I'm afraid — no matter how hard I worked and prayed, I was unequal to the challenge. It was then that I realized that my ministry did not depend upon my personal qualifications alone. I began to learn to acknowledge my limitations and turn the situation over to God for him to resolve according to his plan and purpose.

Paul's advice in 2 Corinthians 4 was especially helpful to me because I came to see myself as one of the "earthen vessels" of whom Paul was writing: ". . . we have this treasure in earthen vessels, to show that the transcendent power belongs to God and not to us" (2 Cor. 4;7). My problem was that I was forgetting that I am only the "earthen vessel," not the "treasure" itself.

We human beings are like common clay pots carrying within ourselves the priceless treasure of the Good News of Jesus Christ. Whenever we have the opportunity to witness, it is to witness for Christ, not ourselves. As Paul puts it, "For what we preach is not ourselves, but Jesus Christ as Lord" (4:5). And if we are able to bring light into anyone's darkness, we must remember that ". . . it is the God . . . who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ" (4:6). We do not create the light; we only reflect it.

NOT LOSING HEART. Because the light and the power come from God, we can persevere regardless of the outward circumstances of our lives. Physically, mentally and spiritually we may be worn "down," but we will be "out" only if we allow ourselves to be "out."

As Paul said, "So we do not lose heart. Though our outer nature is wasting away, our inner nature is being renewed every day." (4:16).

These obstacles and defeats are only temporary, for he calls them 'this slight momentary affliction." The "glory" down the road overshadows these temporary defeats.

So, when we are discouraged because of our limitations and "down" because the challenge seems far beyond our capacities, we need to remember that, even when we're "down," God can deliver the "treasure" of Jesus Christ using "earthen vessels" such as ourselves and shining the "light" of Jesus Christ into the darkest nooks and crannies of this world.

In that parish 40-plus years ago where I felt nothing worthwhile was happening in my ministry, unknown to me, God was able to use the "earthen vessel" of that ministry to shine the light of Christ into the life of a young man. So he is able to use each and every one of us and, no matter how great the obstacles, we may be knocked down, but not out. "So we do not lose heart . . ."

Note: In the Steps of Paul to Rome and Greece, an 18-day tour conducted by Larry and Valere Althouse, is scheduled for April 2001. If interested, please contact us at 4412 Shenandoah Ave, Dallas TX 75205/e-mail: althouses@aol.com; fax: (214) 52109312.

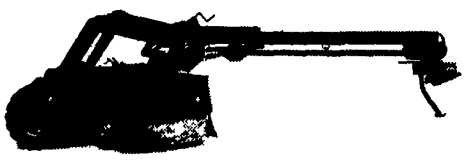
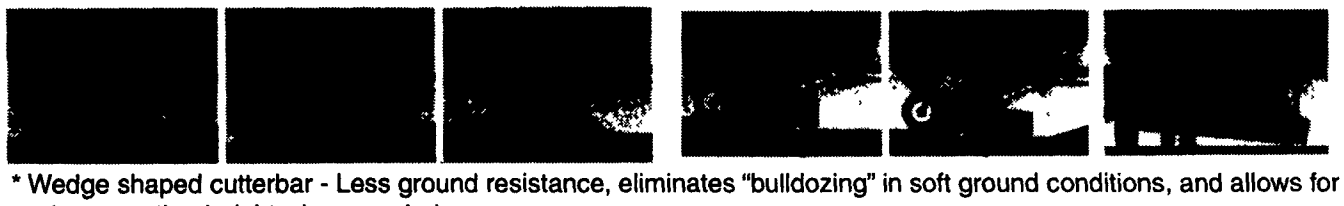
VICON'S KMR Trailed Mower Conditioners

A superb cut with excellent conditioning performance. Available in 7'10", 9'2", 10', 10'6" and 12'6" widths, Vicon is once again "Bringing Technology down to earth."



• Full swivel hitch - PTO stays in alignment when cutting square corners.
• "Free Float" suspension system - With 16" of free stroke in operating position, the cutterbar follows uneven ground and clears obstacles. The center hinge point also permits the mower unit to raise or lower at either side without adding excess pressure on the opposite side. The high-lift design gives swath clearance at headlands.



* Wedge shaped cutterbar - Less ground resistance, eliminates "bulldozing" in soft ground conditions, and allows for a lower cutting height when needed.
* 3 Blades per disc - Vicon's patented design puts 1/3 less load on each blade and an even load on the drive train.
* Top service hubs on cutterbar - Easy Maintenance.
* Labyrinth seals - A specially designed labyrinth seal on the hub of each disc prevents dirt, moisture, and all foreign material from entering.
* Full protected cutterbar - Cutterbar is supported completely with an extra shell and additional wear strips. A reinforcement rod stiffens the cutterbar to prevent flexing.
* Segmented intermeshing fully adjustable conditioning rolls.
* Adjustable formed swath doors for fluffy, easy to pick-up windrows.

April Class and Component Prices Announced

-Class III price is $9.41 per cwt
-April cheese price at support levels
-CME butter showing strength
-U.S. joblessness rate at 30-year low!

A number of interesting reports were released today USDA announced the class and component prices for April 2000. And, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today that the U.S. unemployment rate fell in April to 3.9 percent.

The Class I mover for April was announced on March 17 at $10.93 per cwt with a base skim milk price of $7.70 per cwt. A local Class I differential is added to the Class I mover to determine the Class I price

On May 5 USDA announced the rest of the class prices that are applicable to each of the 11 federal milk marketing orders. The Class II price for April is $12.10 per cwt with a Class II butterfat price of $1.1422 per pound.

The Class III price is $9.41 per cwt with a Class III skim milk price of $5.63 per cwt. And the Class IV price is $11.38 per cwt with a Class IV skim milk price of $7.68 per cwt.

These class prices along with the utilization rates in each federal order (i.e., how much milk is used for Class I purposes) will be used to compute the pool values and the Producer Price Differentials, or PPD. The PPD's are unique for each order and are equal to the pool value less the Class III price of $9.41 per cwt.

Farmers shipping milk into orders that use multiple component pricing will also see component prices on their milk checks. The April component values are butterfat, $1 1352 per pound; nonfat solids, $0 8537 per pound, and protein, $1.7399 per pound. These component values are directly related to the following NASS April average commodity prices: butter, $1.0449 per pound; nonfat dry milk, $1.0078 per pound; cheese, $1.1011 per pound; and dry whey, $0.1765 per pound.

The most surprising number released was the April Class III price of $9.41 per cwt. This was directly related to a NASS cheese price of $1 1011 per pound. This raises some important questions. First, has use of a national NASS survey resulted in lower prices than if we had relied on the cash market at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange? Second, has use of the new Class III formula under federal order reform resulted in a lower price when compared to the old Basic Formula Price? The January through April data strongly suggest that is the case. USDA will be holding hearings on this question next week.

Cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were relatively stable this week. Barrel cheese prices were $1.10 per pound. Block cheese prices fluctuated at $1.09-$1.10 per pound. Process and block cheese prices are stuck at support price levels. During the week of May 1-5, the Commodity Credit Corporation purchased a million pounds of Midwestern cheese under the dairy price support program (332,909 lbs of block cheese, and 673,200 lbs of process cheese).

The biggest surprise on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange was the butter market. Grade AA prices rose from $1.13 per pound on Monday, May 1 to $1.2375 on Friday, May 5 USDA reports that ice cream production is seasonally increasing, which limits the availability of cream for churning purposes. In addition, USDA reports that buying interest is quite strong following the Easter Holiday.

And finally, some good news for struggling dairy farmers. The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reported today that the April unemployment rate edged down to 3.9 percent (http://stats.bls.gov/news.release/pdf/empsit.pdf). According to the BLS, "this is the first time the rate has been below 4.0 percent since January 1970." The nonfarm payroll employment increased by 340,000. In addition, the average hourly earnings rose by 6 cents in April and by 3.8 percent over the year.

This report has some good implications for the U.S. dairy industry. First, the lower the unemployment rate, the more workers there are with paychecks that they can use to eat outside the home. That translates into greater sales of dairy products like cheese and butter. The only concern with this report, however, is that the unemployment rate is so low that it may trigger the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates a quarter to a half percentage point next week to fight potential inflation. But many analysts argue that that may happen anyway.

FARMING, FINANCING AND WORKING TOGETHER

Remember when being efficient was all it took to be a successful farmer? With some help from mother nature, being efficient is still the key to successful farming. And that, by itself, is a tough job.

Today's farmer has to know financing and marketing as well as production. And today, as in the past, The Ephrata National Bank is here to help.

We've been financing local farming since 1881 and plan to for years to come.

Next time you need some honest advice on financing your farming operation, see your friends at The Ephrata National Bank.

To learn more, call Bob Zook at 717-721-5220.

We've stood the test of time...

Creative Solutions Overcome Challenges Of Large Dairy Farm

Becca and Paul are the oldest two cousins who help out on the Mason farm by feeding the calves. Their fathers, Steve and Alan, feel the job helps them learn responsibility and money sense.

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

NOTTINGHAM (Chester Co.) — As farms grow in size, raising families and teaching children the farming work ethic becomes more and more difficult. Employees with specific responsibilities often eliminate opportunities for children to help out the way they can on smaller farms.

Steve and Alan Mason, along with their father Robert, are developing work projects on the farm to help their children learn the importance of hard work and being responsible.

Steve and his wife Nancy have four children, Becca (13), Joanna (9), Ben (7), and Sam (5). Alan and his wife Pam have two children, Paul (9) and Julie (6).

The Masons farm 700 acres and own 400 acres in Chester County. They milk 350 registered Holsteins.

Steve manages the milking help and health aspects of the herd, along with the planting, spraying, and cropping schedules. Alan handles feeding the cows and harvesting the crops. He also works closely with the nutritionist to formulate the rations. Robert takes care of breeding, general maintenance on the farm, and is part of the management team.

Both Pam and Nancy, whose full-time jobs are raising their children, help out on the farm when they can. Robert's wife, Mary Louise, has been the bookkeeper on the farm, but she is now passing down that responsibility to Pam.

Robert and his brother, who has now passed away, began farming more than 50 years ago. When Steve and Alan graduated from college, the four began the integration process so that Steve and Alan could be a part of the business.

"We started the integration process and estate planning right away because it can be extremely difficult in this area with such high land values," said Steve. "The objective was not to cash in on our assets, but enable the next generation to continue in farming."

The Masons' desire to continue in farming follows through to both Steve and Alan wanting to teach their children about farming and the responsibilities that go along with it.

"Something we struggle with is how we incorporate our children into the business so they learn responsibility and money sense at a young age," said Steve. "As a farm gets bigger and you hire more employees, it gets harder to have children involved."

One way the Masons have enabled their children to help on the farm is by making the two oldest cousins responsible for feeding the calves. Robert's brother was taking care of the calves until he passed away. Suddenly there was a job to do that nobody was assigned. Robert volunteered to manage the calves if he had a couple of kids he could train. So Steve and Alan volunteered Becca and Paul to feed the calves.

"We made it into a position of responsibility," said Steve. "Through working with the calves, they are learning about money. We're teaching them that they give so much to God, put so much in their checking account, and have so much left to spend."

The kids also are learning a strong work ethic and have to ask their grandfather's permission for time off from their job. "He's always willing to give them a day off when they need one, especially because they're his grandchildren," said Steve.

Although the other children are still too young for any major responsibilities on the farm, Steve has set up a single hutch with a couple of small, weaned calves for the kids to take care of.

"I pay them so much for each calf that leaves the hutch," said Steve. "If a calf dies, we find out why it died. Death can be very traumatic for young children, and it helps them learn responsibility."

According to Steve, it is hard to measure the success of his calf hutch project. "Sometimes they want to do it, and sometimes they don't."

Still, the kids are learning at a young age about work and earning money. The Masons have also considered other projects to help the kids get involved in farming.

"We thought about finding an interest that each child has and helping them pursue it," said Steve. "For instance, if one child wants to grow pumpkins or dried flowers, then we could give them a plot of land, help them get started, and they would be responsible for taking care of the plot, harvesting the crop, and selling it. Another child might want to raise pigs, so we give them the space and resources to do that — but it would be their responsibility."

Steve, Alan, and Robert work closely together on their dairy farm. They also work closely with their employees. They look for quality employees when they do their hiring.

"Good help is part of the business," said Steve. "You have to hire quality people, or what you're doing is quickly lost."

The Masons use the team approach for getting work done. "Nobody can say they're any better than anyone else," said Steve. "We all work together."

On the Masons' 400 acres of owned land, 180 to 200 acres are planted in corn silage, while another 125 acres are rotated in forage wheat and forage soybeans. The forage soybean crop is a variety that the USDA has been developing for the past few years.

"This year is the guinea pig year for the forage soybeans," said Steve. "We are replacing our alfalfa acres with the new rotation. We plant corn silage, take it off in the fall, plant wheat, harvest it in the spring, and plant the forage beans to be harvested in the fall."

The Masons will use this first year to determine how well the new rotation works and whether or not the acres are balanced.

"We double crop extensively on our farm because it helps out our nutrient management plan and maximizes our land base," said Steve. "We make sure we can raise all of our forages on the land we own."

Living in prime development land, the Masons are never sure from one year to the next how many acres they will have. So they don't grow any forage on the non-owned farmland. Instead they use it to raise soybeans and grain corn. The corn is sold as a cash crop, and the soybeans are roasted and used in the ration.

"You're always waiting for the other shoe to fall when you're farming on 300 acres of prime development area," said Steve. "You can get concentrates anywhere. But you must figure out creative solutions for growing forages."

With 400 acres of owned land and 350 milking cows, the Masons also have developed a comprehensive nutrient management plan.

"We were already accounting for manure through our yearly crop reports," said Steve. "The nutrient management plan just made everything legal."

Growing more forages and double cropping enabled the Masons to use more nutrients on their farm. "We spread manure before we plant the wheat in the fall and after the wheat comes off in the spring."

"What farmers have to realize is that nutrient management is the law and our responsibility," said Steve. "As we get larger, we can't loose sight of the environment or water quality in order to chase economic efficiency. We need to make sure we're being proactive and avoiding any problems before they happen."

Whether it's creating work projects for their kids, developing an unusual rotation of forages, or finding ways to properly utilize nutrients on their farm, the Masons find creative solutions to every challenge they face on their dairy farm.

Creative solutions abound at the Masons' dairy operation in Nottingham. Whether it's coming with ways to teach their children good work ethic, growing enough forage for 350 cows on 400 acres, or double cropping to maximize nutrient requirements of ground, the Masons use innovation to come up with solutions.

Floros To Head Penn State Food Science Department

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — John Floros, professor of food process engineering and packaging at Purdue University, has been appointed head of the department of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, effective June 28.

"Along with his superb research record, John brings to this position excellent preparation and experience in curriculum development and enhancement, and strong leadership skills to continue to move our food science programs to higher levels, said Robert Steele, dean of the college. "He is a great addition to our college's leadership team."

Floros has made substantial contributions in the application of chemical engineering, applied mathematics and industrial statistics to understand the many phenomena that drive food process engineering and packaging systems. His work has generated significant innovations in efficient food processing and packaging systems, while improving the value, quality, safety and shelf life of food products.

His accomplishments include developing effective peeling processes for fruits and vegetables, optimizing a calcification process for diced tomatoes and establishing new, environmentally friendly techniques to commercially ferment vegetables using low-salt brines. He also designed "active" packaging films with antimicrobial properties that improve food safety and extend the shelf life of some packaged foods.

Floros has been elected to the executive committee of the Institute of Food Technologists (IFT), and has chaired several national and regional IFT committees and divisions. He was awarded an honorary research visiting professorship in the department of biotechnology of Denmark's Technical University. He also has assisted in developing a graduate curriculum and program for the department of food science and technology of Aristotelian University in Thessaloniki, Greece, and has been an external reviewer for the department of applied biology and chemical technology at the Technical University of Hong Kong.

A native of Greece, Floros received his bachelor's and master's degrees in food science and technology from the Agricultural University of Athens, Greece, and his doctorate in food science and technology from the University of Georgia in 1988. Beginning as a technician and production supervisor at a fruit processing plant in Andravida, Greece, he advanced to plant manager.

Later, he served as a research assistant first at the University of Athens, then at the University of Georgia, before coming to Purdue University, where he rose to the rank of full professor.

He is a member of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, the American Society for Quality Control and the Institute of Food Technologists. He also belongs to Phi Tau Sigma, Sigma Xi and the Society of Plastic Engineers. Floros has published more than 36 refereed articles, 19 book chapters, 12 other publications and 70 research abstracts. He has presented more than 55 invited lectures and serves on the editorial boards of the Journal of Food Quality and the trade publication, Food, Cosmetics and Drug Packaging.

Floros' wife, Patricia, has a master's degree in food science from the University of Georgia and worked in the beverage development division of Lipton's. They have two sons: Dimitri, 9, and Nikolas, 7.

Students Learn About Agriculture While Assisting With Campaign To Reward Dairy Farming Stewardship

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — In a White House meeting on May 9 to rally support for the upcoming vote in the House of Representatives on China trade, National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) President Lynn Jensen thanked President Bill Clinton for his support of trade and told Clinton that NCGA would do all that it could to support passage of the House bill.

The invitation to the gathering in the East Room of the White House showed that the administration recognized the reputation and credibility of the NCGA as a voice for corn growers.

And acceptance of the invitation and subsequent trip to Washington during the middle of planting showed how critical Jensen and the NCGA views the issue of China trade. Jensen, who farms at Lake Preston, S.D., and represents the 30,000 NCGA members and corn growers nationwide, was one of only a few agricultural leaders invited.

The nearly 200 guests included former presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, Vice President Al Gore, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, former secretaries of state, secretaries of defense, former ambassadors, national security advisers, and other Cabinet officers.

"We need all corn growers to call their representatives to support passage of this House bill on May 22," Jensen said. "NCGA has always been committed to opening world trade for U.S. bulk commodities and U.S. value-added products such as meat and poultry. China has more than 1.2 billion people, five times the number of consumers in the U.S. Developing and maintaining fair and open international trade practices and policies are essential to the growth of U.S. corn exports and the growth of the potential for profitability for U.S. corn growers."

To voice your support for China trade, call Congress toll-free at (888) 550-8013. For more details on how China trade benefits U.S. corn growers and information on the anticipated House of Representatives vote on May 22, see the NCGA website at www.ncga.com.

2000 N.Y. Budget One Of The Best For Agriculture

GLENMONT, N.Y. — Recently, New York's legislative leaders reached an agreement on the FY 2000-01 State Budget.

Although well past the April 1 deadline, this is one of the earliest agreements in recent years and one of the best for agriculture.

Due in large part to Governor Pataki, the Senate Majority's leadership, as well as support from key Assembly members, this budget represents significant support of New York agriculture and the rural way of life.

Included in the budget is an historic $12 million reform of the farmers' state and local sales tax exemption program, substantial reductions in the gross receipts tax for energy, and restoration of various agricultural programs around the state.

"We are more than pleased with this budget," said John W. Lincoln, president of New York Farm Bureau. "With the low commodity prices and weather disasters farmers have been enduring, the support our leaders have given agriculture will help to save farmers money at a time when they need it most."

Governor Pataki, through this budget, has shown that he is truly supportive of agricultural economic development. This commitment was demonstrated through the inclusion of the $1.3 million dedicated to the new Grow New York initiative.

In addition to the much needed clarification and expansion of the farmers' sales tax exemption program, Senate Agriculture Committee Chair Nancy Larraine Hoffmann (R-Syracuse) secured an early effective date of September 1, 2000 to ensure farmers will start saving money this year.

"The new sales tax reforms are very clear about what items are now exempt," said Lincoln. All items used in the farm business will now be exempt. "In addition, New York Farm Bureau has worked very hard to achieve recognition of the commercial horse boarding industry as a growing sector of New York agriculture. For the first time, commercial horse boarding operations are now eligible to receive the same benefits on sales tax exemptions on items used in farming as the rest of the industry. This is a major step forward for agriculture."

Specific items included in exemptions effective September 1, 2000 are farm equipment, farm building construction materials, fencing, electricity, diesel, and other fuel used in farm production.

Assembly Agriculture Chair William Magee's (D-Nelson) efforts were key to achieving the programmatic funding which is necessary for the future of agriculture in New York State. Through his leadership, dairy farmers will have access to an expanded animal disease control program for Johne's disease, teachers of agriculture will have funding for an expanded curriculum to teach New York's children, and other key agricultural areas will be funded.

Milk Marketing Board Announces April Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for April Class I milk as an average of $14.78 in the western areas of the Commonwealth and an average of $15.26 in the central and eastern areas of the Commonwealth. Class I milk is milk beverage type milk.

These prices do include the current over-order premium of $1.20 per one hundred pounds of milk and - for the first time, the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per one hundred pounds of milk is included.

Since 1988, the PMMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I milk due to adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer. The current premium of $1.20 was ordered to offset losses due to drought conditions. On Wednesday, May 3, the PMMB held a hearing for the purpose of evaluating this premium. Testimony that was presented supported continuing the premium at a level ranging from $1.00 to $1.20 per hundred pounds of milk due to the record-low prices dairy farmers are currently receiving for their milk.

Chairwoman Beverly R. Minor announced that since the inception of the PMMB's over-order premium in 1988, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received an additional $200,512,000 in income.

Land O'Lakes To Build Plant In Black River Falls, Wis.

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes announced this week plans to build a large-scale, world-class animal milk products production facility in Black River Falls, Wis. Company officials said the new facility will help Land O'Lakes better serve its rapidly growing domestic and international animal milk replacer customers. A timetable for the construction of the 65,000 square-foot facility was not announced.

"This plant will enhance our ability to meet customer expectations through a combination of increased capacity and the use of the most advanced processing technology available," said Duane Halverson, Land O'Lakes Executive Vice President and Ag Services Chief Operating Officer. "It will give us the level of production efficiency and flexibility necessary to continue the cost-effective production of industry-leading, premium-quality milk replacers."

Halverson indicated the availability of quality inputs and Black River Falls' location on rail and highway corridors were important factors in the site-selection process.

"Along with the production efficiencies inherent in the plant's design, size, and technology, its central Wisconsin location allows for future growth and will enhance our delivery capabilities," he said.

Wisconsin Governor Tommy G. Thompson lauded the employment opportunities to be generated by the new plant, which represents a multi-million-dollar Land O'Lakes investment. He added that details of a state incentive package are still being finalized.

"I am delighted Land O'Lakes has decided to build a new, large-scale production facility in Black River Falls," Thompson said. "The company is a leading, national food and agricultural cooperative, and we welcome Land O'Lakes' continuing commitment to Wisconsin."

Land O'Lakes pioneered the development of animal milk replacers with the introduction of a powdered, whey-based calf milk replacer in the early 1950's. Its commitment to, and growth in, the industry is unparalleled. Today, Land O'Lakes is the world's leading manufacturer of milk replacers for a diverse range of animal species.

Land O'Lakes currently produces animal milk replacers at a facility in Minneapolis, Minn.

Stanbaugh heads an aggressive legislative advocacy program that is part of the Grange presence in the state.

Experimental Fungus Controls Pesky Beetles In Poultry House

The technology to kill beetles using the naturally occurring fungus was developed and tested in houses in North Carolina, though some are being used in Ohio. Houses are treated with the fungal agent before bringing new flocks in.

The fungus is formulated in an oil emulsifier and applied with normal spray equipment. The material has advantages because it can be administered even under tight water restrictions.

In tests conducted by JABB (the company founded by J.J. Arends and partner, Bill Black, vice president), the material is particularly effective on the darkling beetles. The insects are killed about 3-5 days after contact with the spores.

"We started in high-rise layers," noted Arends. The goal was not to eliminate the beetles, but to "get the numbers of them in the houses as low as possible and maintain them at a low level," he said.

"However, we found that we could control the beetles with regular applications of the fungus, thus eliminating the damage caused by the beetles in the houses."

With broilers and turkeys, control of the beetle has been difficult. The birds enjoy eating the larvae first, then the adult beetles, and then the feed.

Arends mentioned one producer who has used the material as part of a small scale exemption use permit, replacing commercial insecticides. Using the fungal agent worked for this grower.

"One growers has had no insect problems in the house in five years, and has used no pesticide," Arends said.

With broilers, it's important to treat prior to each flock.

Compared to commercial insecticides, through data on seven flocks, both gave the same kind of control.

The fungus is not harmful to humans, livestock, or pets. If ingested, it is digested like a protein, Arends noted.

In layers, the fungus was used monthly. It was applied with rotating foggers. A visual evaluation was made monthly.

Samples were taken, including at cleanup.

Hide beetles have proven a challenge. The beetles are interested more in a high protein food source, including dead chickens and eggs. "'They have no interest in flies, and are not important for fly control," said Arends.

The manure pack proves the ideal home for the beetles. A pack that measures a foot to 18 inches or higher acts as a sponge for the beetles. They enjoy the dry manure, an "'ideal environment," noted Arends. "'It has the perfect temperature, no predators, lots to eat — it's the Hilton they never thought they'd see."

Beetles can populate quickly and prove to be a pest not only to the growout or other poultry manager, but to neighbors.

The fungus lasts only about 21 days. A fogger is used to apply the material in a heavy fog, enough to ensure contact with the beetles. The hide beetles are "'really sensitive to the fungal material," Arends said.

Ohio has requested that the material be given an EPA registered Sect. 18. For commercial use, the product is continuing to gain approval by EPA as a biopesticide.

The material is safe because it is insect-specific.

"We're not worried about dogs or kids eating it," said Arends. The material is digested like a protein. And after about three weeks, the fungus is gone.

One development: the fungus has shown ample effectiveness against house flies, another pest that challenges poultry house management experts.

In one experiment, according to Arends, after three days of fungus exposure, fly populations began to drop. On day five, 80 percent of the flies were eliminated. By day 10, all the flies were dead.

Growers may have high expectations, but using the product for flies, so far, looks good, Arends noted.

PA Council Of Farm Organizations Addresses Ag-Related Legislative Issues

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Drought assistance, emergency drought guidelines, Clean and Green regulations, and this year's Annual Cornucopia were all discussed at the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations' meeting held Wednesday at the Pennsylvania Capitol in Harrisburg.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes, Jr., highlighted recent projects the Department has been emphasizing.

According to Hayes, 70.6 million dollars have been dedicated to assisting farmers with the 1999 drought. Five million went for the hay assistance program, while 5.6 million went for the crop insurance assistance program. The remaining 60 million will be allocated as direct payments to farmers suffering from the drought.

"Both the governor and legislators want the 60 million to go out as soon as possible," said Hayes. "The advanced payments have already been made, and the intermediate payments are going out this week. The final payments will go out just as soon as we get all of the final reports from counties that are behind in providing us with their information."

According to Hayes, the only qualifying criteria of the drought assistance program is that farmers must have had more than a 35 percent crop loss due to the drought.

Hayes also addressed emergency regulations that the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency is establishing in regards to water usage during drought emergencies.

"We want to keep an eye on these regulations because they could affect parts of the agriculture industry. For example, food-processing companies use significant amounts of water.

Traditionally, agriculture has always had an exemption from these regulations," said Hayes. "But, as the regulations become more extensive, that could change."

According to Hayes, the department is working with legislators, the Emergency Management Agency, and food processing companies to make sure that regulations aren't so restrictive that they prohibit agriculture processing.

"Production agriculture will be fine under these regulations," said Hayes. "But we have to realize that we can't have one without the other."

Another issue that Hayes addressed was food safety regulations at county fairs and in the dairy beef and dairy product industries. "We're applying the same principles from our egg quality assurance program to milk and dairy beef to make sure we don't have a problem like the Jack-In-The-Box incident, where people were harmed from foodborne illnesses."

Hayes also addressed the consolidation of the Clean and Green regulations affecting farmers. The department hopes to publish the proposed regulations and rules soon.

"Currently we are reviewing informal public comment on the regulations," said Hayes. "There have been incidents across Pennsylvania where the farm population has been questioning whether the counties have been interpreting the regulations as the legislators intended. We want to make sure that the county assessor in York County is interpreting the regulations the same as the county assessor in Warren County is."

Jay Howes, director of policy development for the House of Representatives Ag Committee staff, also discussed legislature affecting agriculture.

Howes discussed the modification of the drought crop loss legislature, which freed up funds to distribute all of the 60 million available. The modifications also opened up the crop insurance program to any producer, not just those who participated in the 1999 crop loss assistance program.

Howes also highlighted two other legislative issues the Ag committee is working on. The first is an ag technology bill that would provide low-interest loans for installation of irr igation systems. The second involves two bills that address land use issues.

"They're making language modifications to these bills, and we need to keep an eye on them," said Howes. "It's important that the agriculture land exemption language stays the same."

In his comments, House encouraged the Council to support Ken Rutt, who is up for reelection to the state conservation board. The Council voted to send a letter of approval on Rutt's behalf.

Council members also brought up other issues dealing with Pennsylvania agriculture during the meeting. Some of those issues included new pesticide regulations, the Environmental Protection Agency's proposed water runoff rules, funding for vocational agriculture programs, and potential changes to the state inheritance tax regulations.

The group highlighted the success of the recent Annual Cornucopia. 192 people attended the event held in the rotunda of the Capitol building. 117 legislators, along with their staffs, came to the event to network with 75 farm organization representatives and guests.

During the meeting, the Council filled the vacancy on the executive board. Gary Maurer from the Pennsylvania Young Farmers' Association was nominated to fill the position.

Vice President Curtis Kratz from Moyer Packing Company led the meeting and encouraged the group to form a new committee to coordinate more activities benefiting the agriculture industry.

"Everything this group has done in the past has been really good, but we need to do more," said Kratz. "We have the opportunity and expertise to do something more to better agriculture in Pennsylvania."

Deadline For Governor's Award Announced

CONSHOHOCKEN (Montgomery Co.) -Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Regional Pollution Prevention and Compliance Assistance Chief Heather Bouch recently announced the deadline for the 2000 Governor's Award for Environmental Excellent.

Environmentally-friendly farms and agribusinesses, along with governmental groups, companies, and organizations, are encouraged to submit their application for this prestigious award by July 14.

"Gov. Tom Ridge created these awards to recognize Pennsylvania's environmental leaders for their efforts in preserving and enhancing our environment," Bouch said. "By recognizing the achievements of our award winners, we can educate the public that the economic and environmental benefits of preventing pollution and promoting energy conservation not only makes sense for the environment, but give money back to employers and individuals by reducing their operating costs."

Since Jan. 1, 1997, the 132 past award winners have reduced wastewater by 2.3 billion gallons, solid waste by 78 million tons and air emissions by 75 million tons. They reduce electricity use by more than 30 million kilowatt hours, while saving $385 million in costs along the way.

"These impressive results from groups, employers and individuals are the foundation for Pennsylvania continuing to be an environmental and economic leader in the 21st century," Bouch said.

This year, DEP is offering a new service where applications may be filled out online and submitted electronically. Applications are also available by downloading them from DEP's website or by contacting DEP's Office of Pollution Prevention and Compliance Assistance at (610) 832-6021.

The Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence is presented annually to Pennsylvania businesses, government agencies, municipalities, organizations, farms and agribusinesses, or individuals engaged in pollution prevention, recycling, or energy efficiency.

Each candidate may submit one application focusing on a best project or program in the categories of pollution prevention; energy efficiency/renewable; technology innovation; management system; technical assistance provider; land use; industrial recycling; recycling and market development; and education and outreach.

To submit or download a 2000 Governor's Award application electronically, or to find out more information on the awards program including descriptions and video clips of previous winners, visit DEP through the Pennsylvania homepage at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.dep.state.pa.us (directLINK "Governor's Awards').

Oak Ridge Boys To Highlight Poultry Council's Biggest Fundraiser

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — PennAg Poultry Council's biggest fundraiser, the Millennium Spring Banquet, is scheduled Monday here at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

Oak Ridge Boys take center stage at 7 p.m., after a social and dinner. The social features lots of different poultry products, followed by dinner and entertainment.

The banquet is the largest fundraiser of the year for the council, part of PennAg Industries Association, Harrisburg, noted James A. Shirk, assistant vice president of the PennAg Industries Association.

The banquet represents "well over half of the Poultry Council's budget," Shirk said.

As of Tuesday this week, 1,200 poultry producers and agri-industry representatives were registered for the banquet. Some tickets, at $100 per guest, are available, noted Shirk.

Shirk will be in PennAg's new office, off Linglestown Road (Rt. 39) northeast of Harrisburg, Sunday afternoon. Individual tickets ordered Sunday can be picked up at the banquet door. For tickets, call Shirk at (717) 651-5920, ext. 225.

The banquet will take place in the Great American Hall at the newly renovated Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

The banquet features chicken breast and fresh vegetables. Dessert is Hershey chocolate pie.

Before the entertainment, Bill Robinson — president of Kreamer Feeds, Kreamer, and chairman of the Poultry Council — will speak about the year for producers.

Introducing the Oak Ridge Boys will be Dandelion, local radio disc jockey and Radio DJ Hall of Fame member.

The Oak Ridge Boys follows the country music theme popular to the fundraiser. The group has three decades of chart-topping hits, million-selling albums, an endless highway of personal appearances, and a permanent place in the pantheon of country music.

In a letter to poultry supporters of March 24, Shirk wrote that "strong advocacy for the poultry industry and its suppliers has never been more important. Associations provide valuable industry coordination and are our first line of defense against an onslaught of regulations and critics. But they can only operate effectively with your support."

Proceeds from the fundraising dinner will be used to protect the interests of the Pennsylvania poultry industry and its suppliers. Shirk wrote, "The support will also strengthen our alliance and structure with PennAg Industries, the leading voice and watchdog for agribusiness in Pennsylvania."

The money raised contributes to many different programs, according to Shirk, including egg programs, educational programs for all poultry producers, operating expenses, and others.

A highlight of the programs includes working to make the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program, or PEQAP, a national program, adopting it for other states. The national initiative is up for comment.

Environmental recognition labeling under ISO-14000 for poultry is under review. This type of labeling will help educate the consumer about the industry's role in ensuring environmental quality protection.

For more information about PennAg, contact Shirk at (717) 651-5920, ext. 225.

The Oak Ridge Boys will entertain guests of the Millennium Spring Banquet at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center. From left, William, Joe, Richard, and Duane.

Question: We have tried everything to eliminate heat stress in our herd but summertime production still drops 10 to 14 pounds of milk. Should we be considering anything else to reduce this much milk loss?

Normally the beginning of May doesn't inspire this type of question, but then again early May seldom hits temperatures in the upper 80's like we just experienced.

Barn Owl 2000™ allows us to look at the past four years in the above graph. We see that indeed milk production bottoms out each year during July and August. What if we could prevent half of this downward production trend? When we do everything we know to prevent problems concerning heat stress and seem to make little progress, maybe we should shift our focus. In this case there is the possibility that nothing more is to gain by addressing the milking herd. We can change our thinking a bit and look at the heat stress of our dry cows. I looked at the DHIA records for this same time frame with my focus on milk levels at the start of the lactation for mature cows

Herd Summary II contains information regarding production on the first test day in the section labeled "Profile Of Cows By Days In Milk". Here we can calculate that cows that freshen from November to April milk 98# on their first test day. This compares to 84# for cows that freshen May to October This is no big surprise when we know that heat stress will be much more devastating on these early lactation cows. These same cows show a 3000# advantage in 305 day production when they calve during the cooler months.

Managing cows that calve during inclement weather poses some unique challenges. This summer may be a good time to maintain what we currently are doing for the milking herd to relieve heat stress but add the extra dimension of heat stress management for dry cows. Improving comfort, increasing dry matter intake, and reducing stress are not just milking cow priorities, they are meant for everyone We already have information through our DHIA reports that may help us focus on times and conditions when cows may not produce as we know they are capable of If we use this information we can develop a plan that may be a bit different than our customary management, but who cares? Sometimes we need to change before our cows can.

Checkoff Dollars Harvest Springtime Results

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) — U.S. corn growers don't harvest a crop in April. But during the last week of April, corn growers began harvesting a crop of new corn marketing opportunities that had been planted and nurtured with grower checkoff funds.

First, on April 25 at Blair, Neb., Cargill Dow broke ground on the first world-scale manufacturing facility to make plastics and natural synthetic fibers from corn. When completed in late 2001, the plant will process 40,000 bushels of corn per day or 14 million bushels of corn annually to produce polylactides (PLAs), plastics, and fibers for clothing and carpeting.

Second, on April 29, a group of Missouri farmers opened the Show-Me state's first corn ethanol plant. The Macon, Mo., plant will turn six million bushels of locally grown corn into 15 million gallons of ethanol and about 100 million pounds of distillers dried grains.

Both events are examples of the state and national projects that farmers fund with checkoff dollars to create and expand markets for U.S. corn.

Checkoff funds are similar to research and development dollars private companies reinvest in new products, markets, and processes. Farmers in 19 states have established programs to pool money generated by collecting a fraction of a cent per bushel on each bushel sold. The resulting fund is managed by a board of farmers. In some cases the money is pooled into bigger projects at national level through the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). In other cases, the farmers at state level chose to fund projects and activities within each state.

"Besides encouraging Cargill Dow and helping the company seek funding through Department of Commerce grants, NCGA invested check off dollars from farmers to fund basic research to get things going. And, Cargill helped us evaluate research opportunities," said Lee Klein, the NCGA president-elect and a farmer from Battle Creek, Neb., referring to the new PLA plant development. "NCGA members and all corn growers who pay the checkoff can take pride that their dollars funded the research that has led to this new facility. Since 1994, corn growers at the national and state-level organizations have turned this research into a top priority."

Klein further illustrated some of the longer-term opportunities for corn, opportunities that will need checkoff investment. "This opens the door to the possibility of other price-competitive consumer products made from renewable resources such as corn. The tremendous potential for consumer goods could eventually lead to demand for another 500 million bushels. That additional demand could add 25 cents to the price of a bushel of corn."

Saturday's grand opening of the Northeast Missouri Grain Processors (NEMOGP) ethanol plant was not only the opening of Missouri's first ethanol plant, but also for a new generation, farmer-owned, value-added cooperative.

Again, corn growers' checkoff dollars played a big part. Through the Missouri Corn Merchandising Council, the farmers who administer the state's corn checkoff funds, corn growers provided seed money in 1995 to help NEMOGP organize.

Sheep Scrapie Information Meeting May 22

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The American sheep industry is taking a giant step toward the goal of eradicating scrapie from its flocks across the country.

Pennsylvania leads the country in scrapie monitored flocks with 51 enrolled.

Lancaster County producers are urged to do the right thing and get involved in the Pennsylvania Scrapie Flock Certification Program.

Scrapie is a degenerative and ultimately fatal neurological disease in sheep and goats. It was first diagnosed in the United States in 1947, but through August 1999 it has been found in 950 flocks in this country.

Scrapie primarily has been reported in the Suffolk breed, but it also has been diagnosed in a Border Leicester, Cheviots, Corriedales, a Colswald, Dorsets, Finn Sheep, Hampshires, Merinos, Montadales, Rambouillets, Shropshires, Southdowns, and a number of crossbreeds.

Penn State Cooperative Extension will conduct an informational meeting regarding scrapie and the flock certification program Monday, May 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Dr. Amy J. Nesselrodt, USDA veterinary medical officer, will lead the discussion.

The voluntary certification program provides participating producers with the opportunity to protect their sheep from scrapie and to enhance the marketability of their animals.

Signs of scrapie vary widely among individual animals and develop very slowly. Early signs include subtle changes in behavior or temperament — these changes may be followed by scratching and rubbing against fixed objects, apparently to relieve itching. Other signs are loss of coordination, weight loss despite retention of appetite, biting of feet and limbs, lip smacking and gait abnormalities, including high-stepping of the forelegs, hopping like a rabbit, and swaying of the back end.

For more information regarding the meeting, contact Chester D. Hughes, Lancaster extension livestock agent, at 717-394-6851.

Genetic Engineering – From Mice To Cows?

Cindy McKinney and Cooduvalli Shashikant
Department of Dairy and Animal Science, Penn State University

Twenty-five years ago, genetic engineering merely served as fodder for science fiction writers. However, as we now enter the 21st century, genetic engineering is poised to make a substantial impact on our lives, food supply, and medicines.

The roots of genetic engineering can be traced to the late 1970s, when methods to manipulate the genetic material, DNA, became available. Mutations (or changes) in DNA sequences can cause the formation of abnormal proteins, which lack normal activities and may lead to disease. Genetic engineering techniques allow us to identify the mutations responsible for human and animal diseases. These methods provide a powerful means of studying the genetic makeup of animals.

Genetic Engineering of Mice:

It is now possible to genetically engineer mice – that is, add or remove fragments of DNA by manipulating embryonic stages of the mouse. These techniques allow researchers to use mice to develop models of human and animal diseases. Researchers already are using genetically engineered mice to study defects in human DNA which might lead to cancer, Type-II diabetes, or mental illness. Since 1990, researchers have produced literally hundreds of mouse disease models to enhance researchers' abilities to understand how inherited diseases develop.

Genetic Engineering from Mice to Livestock

For many years scientists have been interested in the phenomenon, double muscling. This trait, observed in cattle, is associated with a dramatic increase in muscle mass. Researchers at Johns Hopkins University identified a DNA mutation in the gene thought to be responsible. When this mutated gene was introduced into mice they also displayed the "double muscling" phenotype observed in Piedmontese cattle. This suggests that mice and livestock share common biological functions, and that mice can be used as models for larger animals. As a result, agricultural scientists are exploring the feasibility of genetically engineering livestock species for specific purposes.

A number of studies already conducted in sheep, goats, pigs and cows have introduced individual genes into these species that lead to the production of proteins not otherwise found in milk. These proteins are isolated from milk and used for a variety of clinical uses in human medicine. This emerging field of gene "pharming," in which the regulatory fragments of genes that direct the production of proteins normally found in milk are tested with hybrid genes in mice, pigs, and cows. Pharmaceutical companies are particularly interested in these studies because it may afford the opportunity to produce therapeutic proteins like erythropoietin for kidney dialysis patients. If selected proteins can be produced and subsequently isolated from milk without destroying their natural activity, a variety of expensive drugs may become more widely available by using "engineered" livestock.

An advantage of genetically engineered livestock is that they are renewable by breeding, can provide large quantities of milk as starting material, and can be maintained on farms with the same technology used for current animals. Pilot studies using farm animals as "bioreactors" are being conducted at a few universities and "biotech" companies; Penn State is presently not conducting any of these studies.

While the future of genetically engineering in animal agriculture is promising, further research is needed. First, the technology must advance significantly before it will be cost effective to produce genetically engineered livestock. The first reports of cloning (manipulating DNA outside the animal and exchanging an engineered nucleus for a non-engineered nucleus) may be a significant step forward. However, the success ratio in these experiments is very low and requires further improvements.

Second, are engineered products superior to naturally produced products? Will they be cost effective? Further, can the byproducts of this manufacturing process be utilized elsewhere? This requires a good cost/benefit ratio to be profitable.

Finally, are genetically engineered products safe as well as therapeutic? The evidence to date indicates that biotechnology and genetic engineering are safe, however, any new product needs to be rigorously evaluated.

The Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State's University Park campus has created "The Mouse Farm," a genetic engineering program involving mice. We believe that genetic engineering studies of prototype DNA molecules in mice can be translated to larger animal species. However, these advances will depend on the availability of more information from genome databases for livestock, the continued refinement of genetic methods, and more cost-effective production.

Harpster Attends State Beef Council Director Orientation

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Abraham Harpster, a dairy operator from Spruce Creek, took part in a State Beef Council Director Orientation Session at the National Cattlemen's Beef Association's (NCBA) Denver office April 19-20.

Harpster attended the session to learn about current checkoff-funded programs and initiatives. Information provided at the session should help Harpster represent and communicate with his state-level constituents.

Harpster serves on the board of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, the group charged with directing and investing half of all beef checkoff dollars collected in Pennsylvania.

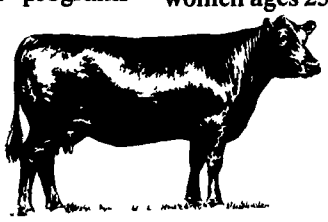
State beef councils may invest a portion of their 50 cents in national and international programs to extend national efforts; therefore, state directors need to know how their state dollars are being coordinated with national dollars to meet consumer needs.

"Directors have a responsibility to represent their state's views in national checkoff efforts, as well as to carry information back to their home states about programs," said Steve Smola, NCBA Federation of the State Beef Councils Division vice chair and host of the training session.

NCBA contracts on a non-profit basis with the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB) to conduct producer-directed checkoff programs on behalf of the industry. "Part of our role is to facilitate the coordination of programs and dollars between the state and national levels. This is one reason we host the director orientation - to keep communication flowing and keep us all on the same page," said Smola.

Harpster, along with other attending state directors, heard program updates on all areas of national checkoff funding, including promotion, research, consumer information, industry information, foreign marketing, and producer communications. Directors were updated on the checkoff-funded advertising campaign that is bringing the "Beef. It's What's for Dinner" convenience and nutrition message to beef's target audience - women ages 25-54.

Steve Smola, vice chair, NCBA Federation of State Beef Councils Division with Abraham Harpster.



SRBC Seeks Public Comments On Draft Drought Coordination Plan

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) recently released its draft Susquehanna River Basin Drought Coordination Plan for public comment.

The draft plan details the three drought stages — watch, warning and emergency—and their purposes, the proper procedures for monitoring droughts, issuing drought declaration, and responding to drought conditions in the Susquehanna basin.

Through its Drought Coordination Committee, SRBC's primary role during droughts is to coordinate activities among its members—states of New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland and the federal government—to ensure effective drought responses. The draft plan includes information on the drought management activities of each member state and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

To further minimize confusion for the countries located in both the Susquehanna and Delaware basins, special guidelines are included in the draft plan for issuing declarations in those counties. The shared counties are Berks, Carbon, Chester, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lebanon, Luzerne, Schuylkill and Wayne in Pennsylvania and Broome and Delaware counties in New York.

The 30-day comment period for the draft plan will close on May 26. The plan is available on SRBC's Website under the Drought Center at www.srbc.net or by calling the Commission at (717) 238-0423.

Somerset County Joins Lancaster DHIA

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Somerset County DHIA Board recently voted to join Lancaster DHIA as their service provider of choice to serve DHIA members in Somerset County. Tim Flannery, President of Somerset Board, said he is pleased that due to lower overhead by Lancaster DHIA, they will be able to reduce rates to the Dairymen, as well as provide assurance that all Dairymen will receive 12 tests per year. In addition, the Technicians will be rewarded with wage increases and better benefits. All three present Technicians, Leonard Miller, Paul Martin and Rodney Darr will work for Lancaster and continue to provide service in Somerset County. A fourth Technician, Dave Weigle, has been hired to insure ample service to all of the Dairymen.

Jay Mylin, Manager of Lancaster DHIA, has appointed Jere High to be field coordinator for Somerset County. Lancaster DHIA is committed to making changes flow as smoothly as possible for the Dairymen and Consultants who serve in Somerset County.

Any questions or concerns may be directed to Jere High @ Lancaster DHIA, 1-888-202-DHIA (3442).

KILE Set Oct. 4-9

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 2000 Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) will be conducted at the Farm Show Complex Oct. 4-9.

The featured species will be swine. There will be a repeat of the one-day Barrow Show started last year.

In the sheep area, a Pennsylvania Junior Market Lamb Show has been added. In the horse area, the largest point class in the country will be on Saturday night when the hitch classes compete in the large arena.

It is anticipated that two additional tents will be needed to house the anticipated increase in draft horses.

In the beef area, scheduled are a Hereford National Show and an American "British White Park" cattle competition.

Sponsorship letters have been mailed out to all those who participated last year. Sponsorships range from $50 to $1,000-plus.

A souvenir program book will again be published for the show. It will have an artist rendering on the cover. This program book will be sold to the general public as well as exhibitors.

Information on advertising has been mailed out to last year's advertisers. Anyone interested in sponsoring a class can call 610-767-5026.

Students Learn About Agriculture While Assisting With Campaign To Reward Dairy Farming Stewardship

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Rewarding environmental stewardship of dairy farmers is almost as difficult as increasing ag awareness of consumers.

A project led by Ann Major, assistant professor of communications at Penn State, does both.

Students in Major's Communications 473 have been working with the Rodale Institute's Dairy Network Partnership (DNP) to research and develop ways to educate consumers about environmental problems in the Chesapeake Bay area.

"The project started in June 1998," said Major. "My area of research is in environmental public opinion, and I worked with Chris Novak from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection on a project in 1997. When Les Lanyon, professor of agronomy at Penn State, read about the project, he contacted me to work on the "Chesapeake Milk" project."

To prepare students to work on the "Chesapeake Milk" project, Major had a student develop an extensive website with materials on agriculture and sustainability during the summer of 1998.

"The kids coming into this class have little understanding about the environment and especially about the dairy industry," said Major. "They have no concept of milk other than the fact that it's available at the grocery store."

As part of the project, classes in both the fall and spring of 1998 and 1999 researched consumer interest and developed media kits to launch "Chesapeake Milk," which bears the Environmental Quality Initiative (EQI) label.

In the fall, students in Communications 473, which is a capstone class taken during the senior year, created four projects focusing on "Chesapeake Milk."

The first was to design focus groups to help the DNP test the "Chesapeake Milk" campaign, which returns a portion of the profits from that milk to farmers who are involved in environmental stewardship.

The second group designed environmental education materials to be taken into elementary schools. The materials included a video highlighting dairy farming and nutrient runoff, as well as classroom activities and a field trip to a dairy farm.

Similar materials for adult groups were prepared by a third group of students. The materials target groups such as the Women's League of Voters, PTA groups, and environmental groups.

A fourth group of students developed a media directory for the campaign that listed all environmental and business reporters in eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, and northern Virginia.

In the spring of 1998, the students held the focus groups to research the "Chesapeake Milk" message. Five separate focus groups were held, and key findings were that very few consumers had any idea that there was a problem with nutrient runoff from dairy farms.

"Consumers in the focus groups did not connect dairy farming with environmental issues," said Major. "Once they read the materials on the milk carton, they said they would be interested in donating a nickel from their milk to reward farmers for environmental stewardship."

After the focus groups were completed and the materials were finished, Major's class delivered the materials to Lori Sandman, who is the project director for the Dairy Network Partnership.

According to Sandman, the students' contribution to the project was invaluable.

"It was fantastic to work with them," said Sandman. "We're a non-profit organization with a small staff, and we couldn't have accomplished all of the necessary work on this project without the help of the students."

Students in Major's spring 1999 class updated the media kit and conducted more focus groups. They also developed an in-store survey, which was refined by students in Major's fall 1999 class.

Leon Weber from Rodale Institute administered the survey and determined whether consumers would be willing to buy "Chesapeake Milk" at a higher price if they knew the extra profits went to environmental stewardship.

Weber also conducted a farmstead survey with farmers who participated in the Environmental Quality Initiative. These farmers had to adhere to environmental guidelines in order to market their milk as "Chesapeake Milk."

"Three-quarters of the farmers surveyed made changes to protect water quality during the previous year," said Weber. "However, most of the changes required small amounts of time and money.

It's clear that the farmers involved in this project are motivated by more than just the prospect of a premium for environmental stewardship," said Weber. "More than a third of the farmers who made improvements already qualified for the Environmental Quality premium before making the improvements."

According to Major, her spring 2000 Communications 473 class has put the "Chesapeake Milk" project on hold.

"We haven't gotten any new assignments from the DNP," said Major. "They usually call or email us about the project when they want us to do something."

The test market for "Chesapeake Milk" was for one year through December 1999. Major is not sure whether the milk is still available at grocery stores.

"One thing that is for sure is that my students learned invaluable information about agriculture and the environment," said Major. "In the evaluations, students said how much they learned and how this class will always impact their food purchasing decisions."

It amazes Major that Penn State does not offer one undergraduate course in agriculture that all students in the University are required to take.

"They slip through without knowing anything about agriculture," said Major. "My class had the good fortune in the fall to visit Penn State's dairy center. Many of the students were never near a cow before then."

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Does Balancing Act With Ease

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Lori Connelly hails from a 125-cow, 500-cow dairy farm in PA Furnace. This summer she plans to return to the farm to help her father when she is not busy with dairy princess activities.

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — It was a last minute decision for Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Lori Connelly to run for Centre County Dairy Princess.

Both Lori and the Pennsylvania dairy industry have been benefiting tremendously from that last minute decision ever since.

"I was a dairy maid for three years, and I thought about becoming dairy princess for a long time," said Connelly. "But I wasn't really sure if I should do it this year because of just starting school."

Lori, the daughter of Ronald and Denise Connelly, is a freshman at the Pennsylvania State University's University Park campus.

For most students, the freshman year is the most challenging of their entire college career. And Lori is balancing her coursework, along with both state and county dairy princess activities AND extracurricular activities in college and her community.

"It's challenging but not overwhelming," said Lori. "I've taken a light course load, but it's enough to keep me busy as a freshman."

The Connellys live on a dairy in PA Furnance that Lori's father farms with his brother Frank, Jr. They own 125 cows and 500 acres. Lori's mother Denise works in Penn State's Agriculture Administration office. Lori has a brother, Chris, who is 22, and a sister, Keri, who is 16.

Even though the farm is only 15 minutes away, Lori lives on campus at Penn State in order to get the full college experience.

"I wanted to experience being on my own," said Lori. "Living on campus also helps me stay focused. There's always a lot of distractions on the farm."

Since Lori started school, she hasn't been able to help that much on the farm. But, when she does go home, she helps take care of the calves, heifers, and show animals. This summer Lori is planning to work full time on the farm when she is not out on dairy princess assignments.

Although she did look into other schools when she applied for college, Lori always knew she would end up at Penn State. "You really can't beat its dairy science major," said Lori.

Living in State College year round helps Lori meet many of her dairy princess responsibilities. "I am fortunate to be here in Centre County because a lot of the state functions are held here," said Lori.

On the county level, Lori and her court have finished up most of the state incentive responsibilities. They are finishing up the school appearances this spring.

"My county alternate, Emily Cloninger and I have 11 dairy maids who help us with county functions," said Lori. "We have a really great committee, and everyone really helps me fulfill my responsibilities."

Lori will hand down her county crown next month, and she expects Centre County to have two dairy princess contestants this year.

Lori has mixed emotions about handing down her county crown. Although she will miss doing county activities, she is looking forward to the remaining half of year as Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

"I am anxious to see someone else get involved in the dairy princess program," said Lori "And I am at a point where I can look back on the last half of year and decide what I want to do for the remaining part of my reign."

Lori has been all over the state and into both Maryland and New York with her state responsibilities. Some of the events she has appeared at include breed conventions, city marathons, annual banquets, and dairy shows.

"I am really looking forward to the Governor's Conference, which is being held here in State College on July 10," said Lori. "The Secretary of Agriculture has promised us that the dairy princesses could host a welcoming reception and serve milk punch to showcase milk as Pennsylvania's official beverage."

Lori works with two state alternate dairy princesses, Amanda Gilkinson and Rebecca Kilgore, to fulfill state obligations. "We have done some things together, but we try to split up the duties," said Lori. "We keep in touch with each other through email and over the phone."

Lori also enjoys working with Jan Harding, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program and Services program director, and the state committee. "They really do a lot on the scene and behind the scene to help out both the state and local princesses."

Along with being dairy princess, Lori is also involved in the Penn State Dairy Science Club and was recently selected to be one of Penn State's Ag Advocates, which is a prestigious group of students who help the College of Ag Sciences with student recruitment and promotion.

Lori is active in both her local 4-H dairy and swine clubs. She owns 10 dairy animals that she shows at county, district, and state level 4-H and Holstein breed shows. She has participated in dairy bowl teams for both the 4-H and Holstein clubs. In college, she is hoping to get involved in dairy and livestock judging.

Lori recently traveled with her family to Ohio to get this year's projects for the swine club. She has taken reserve grand champion market swine at the Pennsylvania Farm Show with past projects.

"Our swine projects originally started as college tuition funds, but now it's just a hobby that we all enjoy," said Lori. "It's something outside of dairy that our family could get involved with through 4-H. I've gotten to meet a lot of people outside of dairy who are involved in agriculture."

Although Lori has held many offices in both 4-H clubs during past years, she has stepped down to let the younger members take leadership roles. Instead, she is volunteering for leadership roles in the Penn State Dairy Science Club. She was recently elected as chairperson for the Penn State 2001 Dairy Exposition, which is held in April.

While Lori was hoping to do well at the state dairy princess pageant last September, she knew it could have been anyone's night.

"There were a lot of talented and knowledgeable girls who ran for the state title," said Lori. "I was really excited when I won."

Lori is the second dairy princess from Centre County to win the state title. "My committee was ecstatic that I won and thought it was great for the county."

Through being dairy princess, Lori has improved her public speaking skills and been made more aware of facets in the dairy industry she was unfamiliar with before this year.

"I know more about the promotion side of the industry, and I've gotten to see how the public views the dairy industry," said Lori. "I'm more open to getting feedback and listening to other people's perceptions of our industry."

One thing that Lori has stressed during her reign is improving the public's perception of the dairy industry.

"The public has a perception of the industry, not just the products, that needs change," said Lori. "Along with the nutritional aspects, dairy products offer a lot of benefits and attributes that our industry can focus on in the future."

Some of those potential facets for promotion include the use of dairy in cosmetics, fertility research, and skin care.

"The dairy industry is looked as non-prosperous by both people in and outside of agriculture," said Lori. "Although we all need to realize that our industry does need a lot of help right now, we need to stress that,

(Turn to Page B3)

A freshman at Penn State, Lori balances school, extracurricular activities, and dairy princess responsibilities with grace. Living on campus helps her stay focused.

Active in both 4-H and the Holstein Club, Lori owns 10 dairy animals, along with a 4-H pig project.

Strawberry Season

It's just about time for fresh strawberries, either from your own garden or your local farm market. Cooperative Extension's pamphlet, "Enjoy Nature's Fresh Strawberries," provides tips on purchasing, storing, and preparing, as well as the characteristics of several different varieties of berries and a few recipes and ideas for eating them (the best part!). Here's just a few of the ideas.

In the early 18th Century, French explorers discovered a plump red berry cultivated by the Indians of Chile. They took several plants home with them. In 1714, the Chilean berry was crossed with a wild meadow strawberry that had been discovered in colonial Virginia. The result was a luscious strawberry that is similar to what we now eat.

Pennsylvania strawberries are available through the month of June. Select fully ripe and appropriately colored strawberries with intact green caps. Pale berries do not become sweeter after they are picked. One cup of sliced, unsweetened strawberries contains only 2 mg of sodium, but it is high in potassium (247 mg) and Vitamin C (140% U.S.RDA).

Strawberries should be refrigerated immediately after purchasing. Never rinse the berries or remove the caps before storing. Remove bruised, rotted, or molded berries before refrigerating. Strawberries should only be stored for a couple days in the refrigerator before eating.

To prepare your strawberries for use, remove the caps and gently wash the berries with cool water just prior to using. For freezing and canning directions, contact your local county extension office and ask for the "Let's Preserve" fact sheet.

Here are two strawberry recipes to enjoy.

Frozen Yogurt
Strawberry Tarts
8-10 graham cracker tart shells
16 ounces plain low-fat yogurt
1/2 cup sugar
8 ounces whipped topping
2 cups fresh sliced strawberries

Combine yogurt and sugar. Fold in whipped topping and sliced strawberries. Fill tart shells with mixture and freeze for at least four hours or overnight. Remove from freezer 30 minutes prior to serving and garnish with sliced strawberries. Place leftovers back in freezer.

NOTE: A deep dish or 10-inch graham cracker pie crust can be used instead of tart shells. Remove from freezer 1 hour prior to serving.

Fresh Strawberry Sauce
1 pint fresh strawberries
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon fresh lemon or lime juice
1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract

Wash and remove caps from strawberries. In a food processor, combine strawberries, sugar, lemon or lime juice, and vanilla. Puree, then chill. Serve over custard, ice cream, or pound cake.

Tioga Dairy Pageant

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — The Tioga County Dairy Princess Pageant is June 5 at Tioga County Fairgrounds. Dinner will be 7 p.m. followed by the pageant.

Interested persons for dairy maids and princesses or persons who want to register for the pageant should call Carol Baker at (570) 549-2599.

Balancing Act With Ease

with the dedication of our leaders and producers, we will be able to continue and thrive."

For girls who are considering running for dairy princesses, Lori cautions them not to be afraid of the commitment. "It is only one year of your life," said Lori. "The experiences and opportunities are well worth the investment."

On the farm, Lori helps take of the calves, heifers, and show animals when she's home from school.

Passages, they are.

Passages marking the ebb and flow of life, those little "firsts" each year are the headline pages marking chapter changes in the stories of our daily lives.

Waking to the first snow of the year. Popping that first homegrown strawberry into your mouth. Spotting the first red-hued leaf of autumn or the year's first litter of kittens. Seeing the first robin stalking worms on your lawn. The first outdoor picnic, first jump into the pool or pond, first frost, first ripe, homegrown tomato. And opening the house windows on the first weather-permitting day.

What a delightful treat it is each spring to push open our house windows after months of confinement by storm glass. Sitting under the heavy shade cast by our tall, thick maple trees, our old brick house sometimes stays chilly enough into mid-May that we fire up the woodstove for a couple of hours to beat back the dampness. So when it does finally warm enough that I can pull down the screens and let the breezes dance through, I feel like the cows must when they first go to pasture in spring.

Of course, by the time the windows can go open here in shade heaven, we are often into our first real taste of summer. Like the record-heat we sweated through last week..

Opening the windows not only "summer-izes" our house, it instantly dials up the decibel level on farm life. With the flip of a couple of wrists, we have sound with our three-dimensional, living-color window views of the outside.

With that switch, distant bird voices are suddenly not so distant. Robins chirp high overhead, first to greet the daybreak and last to bid the fading sunsets goodnight. Cardinals arrive almost as early as the robins start testing their sound systems. A mourning dove joins their treetop jam session, and always the squatter sparrows chime in with their opinions of the morning.

When the sun pops over the horizon, a churring chatter will often warn that the squirrel is chewing out the cats over right-of-way to the backporch feeder for a sunflower seed breakfast. Our resident bushytail commutes to meals via the deck bannister, then makes a flying leap to bridge the short gap to the big maple trunk at the corner, cheeks stuffed with loot.

Invading the quiet both early and late is the sporadic arguing of the Canada geese, squabbling over territorial rights to raise the baker's dozen of fluffy goslings hatched from two nests. Their mostly-verbal battles are often interlaced with the splashing sounds of water as they land and take off. Between the honking geese comes repeated bellowings from the calf barn. An agitated duet, it pairs the soprano complaints from a newborn bawling for another bottle with the baritone pleading of a strapping, ten-week-old heifer just weaned.

A steady muffled roar from out on the hill of contour fields means that all is well with the forage harvesting operation. Keeping pace is the rumbling of the silage trucks making their way past the house, leaving a cloud of dust in the wake of another delivery of ryelage-haylage being stored away. Each mechanized procedure has its own distinct sound track and years of hearing them leave farm wives with an "ear" for when all is going well.

Of course, we also have an ear for when it isn't well. Loud and unexpected clunks, bangs, grinding, clattering or similar out-of-place machinery noises will invariably be followed by the whish of the pickup or four-wheeler zipping by the house, enroute to the shop. Or worse, the banging of the front door, as The Farmer heads for the machinery dealers' phone file.

SHIRKS/SHERKS CULTIVATE ROOTS

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Why do Lancaster County Shirks want to know about the Schurch/Sherk Reunion 2000 in Ontario to be held at Kitchener's Rockway Mennonite Collegiate Campus August 18-20?

Because they're all part of an extended kinship that dates back 300 years and spans four continents—Europe, North America, South America, Australia. Registration for this year's get-together is available from Margaret Sherk, RRI, Elora, Ontario N0B 1SO. Telephone: 519-846-5197. Or e-mail her for registration material at mrsherk@sympatico.ca. Registration deadline is July 20.

Now about that long-distance kinship. Two hundred years ago hundreds of Mennonites from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, packed their Conestoga wagons and, with their families, set off for Niagara Falls. They weren't going as tourists, but to take up land in the wilderness of Upper Canada (Ontario).

The first settler on the Grand River west of Toronto in 1800 was Joseph Schoerg (Sherk/Shirk), who left behind a host of brothers, sisters, cousins in Pennsylvania.

Fast forward to 1982 at Shirksville in Lebanon County, Pennsylvania, where a landmark reunion took place (the first in at least 50 years) between Canadian Sherks and Pennsylvania Shirks. (Never mind small differences in spelling, it was all Schurch in Switzerland, anyway.)

For the last twenty years Shirks of all stripes and spellings (there are more than 50 variations) have gotten together every two years to review friendships with cousins, and meet others they may have met by mail or on the internet. Reunions are held alternately in the U.S.—usually in Lancaster County and in Ontario.

To inquire about a planned bus trip from Lancaster County to the Schurch/Shirk Reunion, contact Carol Becker (717) 336-3744.

(How commonplace that is was recently underlined by grandson Caleb, who was chattering away on his toy mobile phone while lugging around a miniature forage harvester. When his mother asked who he was talking to, this equipment-loving 30-month old replied "machinery dealer.")

And, needless to say, there are few sweeter sounds we hear through those opened screens than the voices of the family, calling as they step onto the porch — "Hi Mom!" and "Hi Grandma!"

Through the screens...or over the phone...or even by e-mail, don't forget to say Hi! to your mom or grandma or other special loved ones this Mother's Day.

It's the best gift you can offer.

Forest Garden Beauty

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — The azaleas should be in full bloom for an upcoming guided walk through Jenkins Arboretum in Devon. The walk on Tuesday, May 16, at 4:00 p.m. is part of the second annual Penn State Cooperative Extension series of "Natural Landscapes and Habitats Walks."

Jenkins Arboretum not only provides visual beauty, but serves as a living example of ecological and aesthetic management of a southeastern Pennsylvania hardwood forest. The shrubs of the forest are mostly azaleas, huckleberries, and blueberries; the ground cover is native woodland flowers and ferns. Paved trails wind among the trees, along the stream and by the pond.

Educators, home gardeners, park land managers, and landscape planners may be particularly interested learning more about the benefits of natural landscaping instead of surrounding trees with mowed lawn.

Space is limited at some of the walk locations. To receive a walk schedule and registration form, send a stamped and self-addressed enveloped to: Recycling Education Program, Natural Landscapes & Habitat Walks, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA 19426, or call the Recycling Education Program at: (610) 489-4315.

Berks Society 1

Berks Farm Women Society 1 held its February meeting at the home of Gerry Marsteller, who called the meeting to order, had the devotional and flag salute. Roll call was answered in response to the question, what is your destination for this time of the year?

Members discussed the 60th anniversary of the group and set the date for May 11 to be conducted at Amityville U.C.C.

Members celebrated Pearl Levengood's 85th birthday. A member of the Amity Company, Kevin Neiswender, spoke on home safety

The April meeting was held at the home of Agnes Noll.

Psalm 67 was read followed by the flag salute. Roll call was answered by members telling what they liked best about Farm Women.

Members discussed the upcoming 60th anniversary. All members brought their favorite teddy bears and Agnes showed her variety of stuffed animals. She has more than 200 different kinds including some very unusual ones.

The next meeting will be at the home of Ella Richard.

York Society 26

York County Society of Farm Women 26 held its April meeting at Eat and Park, New Cumberland. Thirteen members attended the meeting co-hosted by Charlotte Hardy and Janet Lahr.

President Martha Huston conducted the business meeting.

Seven members will attend the Spring Rally at Lebanon County Exposition Building on May 17.

A bus trip is planned to Annapolis for a history and harbor tour on June 20.

Group 34 from Red Lion will entertain Group 26 this summer and Group 21 will entertain Group 26.

At the March meeting, members gave donations to Fairview, Goldsboro, Lewisberry, and Newberrytown Fire Companies.

The May meeting will celebrate the 34th anniversary of Group 26.

Lancaster Society 14

Lancaster Farm Women Society 14 met Jan. 12 at the home of Ruth Kreider with the purpose of sewing bed pads for the Office of the Aging. Sewing committee members Helen Herr, Marion Rohrer, Esther Landis, and Dorothy Musser prepared 32 pads to finish.

A special lunch was planned and served by hostesses Edna Groff, Esther Landis, and Ruth Combs. Esther Landis red Psalm 37 for a devotional.

Delegates to the state convention reported business transactions and the country music.

President Gladys Esbenshade and her daughter, Barb, introduced a craft of making original greeting cards, and encouraged members to remember shut-ins often.

On Feb. 9, outgoing president Heler. Herr opened her home for the meeting hosted by Clara Rohrer and Marion Rohrer. The motto of the month, to love is to give a glimpse of heaven, was the theme of Jean Groff's devotional: Do we really love as we say we do?

Members responded to roll call by showing a photograph of their parents. During the program, members showed an item of their grandmothers to reflect on the legacy of those gone before.

Since several of the society members reside at Landis Home, Elma Barge made arrangements for the March 8th meeting to be held in the Harvest View Building. Mary Louise Landis and Dorothy Musser hosted a group of ladies attired in green. If they were not dressed in green, they paid a $2 fine.

Mary Louise read from Matt.4. Members responded to roll call by naming a missionary. Speaker for the event was Miriam Housman, former teacher and missionary to Ethiopia and Nigeria. She had many interesting experiences to tell and a collection of memorabilia to show. She did not fail to talk about her doctor-husband, who taught eye surgery and was called the Flying Doctor, because he flew to different locations to give patient care.

Location of the April 12 meeting was on the farm of the Corn Maze because of Donna Coleman's hospitality. Hostesses Anna Marie Groff and Mildred Herr included cheese in their treat. Members responded to roll call by naming their favorite cheese.

Donna was assisted in her devotional honoring the death and resurrection of our Lord by her preschool son, who read John 3:16.

Marty Hershey, mother of four children, farmer's wife, and writer for Cross Walk on the internet proved her writing ability by reading some of her articles in a beautifully illustrated book about a little child enduring cancer. The book was inspired by her personal walk with her own son, a victim of leukemia and now recovered.

Thanks to Society 3 for graciously entertaining Society 14 at the Ephrata Library meeting room on April 15.

Mother's Day Tribute To Best Cooks Ever

Making mom's special day memorable is easy if you sent one of her recipes to this column.

Even more special is the written tribute some included with the recipe.

According to our mail, most good cooks learn skills from their mothers and use recipes passed down through the generations.

Enjoy these recipes from our readers, who got them from their mothers and grandmothers.

PUMPKIN PIE

Slice raw pumpkin. Peel and cook with water until soft. Stump with potato masher. Let sit in drainer for several hours. For one smooth, spicy pie, combine the following in blender:

½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon allspice
1 cup pumpkin
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup milk

Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 minutes.

My name is Alicia Hoke, and I am the fourth daughter of my mother which I am honoring. I am honoring my mother because I love her so very much! She makes wonderful pumpkin pies that she and I love to eat together. I think she is a great cook.

Another daughter, Susan Hoke, writes: Our mother is a housewife who has raised four daughters, ranging in ages from 10 to 23 years old. Our mother takes care of all the housework, including cooking, dishes, laundry, and cleaning. She also helps my dad with the outside farmwork. This includes feeding the cattle, barn cats, dog, goat, rabbit, and birds.

She does all this work without a complaint. She also handles the arguments between my siblings and myself.

Our mother is a very caring woman who will help those who need it. She rarely says "no" to anyone.

Our mother does so much that we often take her for granted and forget to tell her how much she means to us. This is one way we can show her how much she means to us.

MOM'S POTATO BUNS

1 cup mashed potatoes
1 cup sugar
1 cup warm potato water
3 eggs, beaten
5 or 6 cups bread flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon yeast
½ cup butter, melted

In the evening, mix yeast into warm potato water and stir to dissolve. Stir all together in bowl but do not knead. Place in large buttered bowl and butter top of dough. Cover and let set overnight. In morning, place spoonsful of dough onto greased cookie sheets and let rise. Bake at 350 degrees just before noon meal and serve hot with butter and jelly.

My mother, Mrs. Titus Zimmerman, was known for these delicious potato buns served for her company meals. She served them fresh from the oven. They are so light, fluffy, and good.

I have always felt priviledged to have such an humble, loving, and caring mother. Her life has been an inspiration and blessing to her husband, six children, and 25 grandchildren, and to many others.

Remove from heat; stir in flour, salt and pepper until smooth. Gradually stir in milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Cook and stir for two minutes. Stir in one cup cheese. Reduce heat; stir until cheese is melted. Drain vegetables; layer half in a greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Top with half the cheese sauce. Repeat layers. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. CARAMEL PUDDING

4½ tablespoons butter
2 eggs
1½ quarts milk
1½ cups brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
4½ tablespoons corn starch
1½ tablespoons vanilla
1 teaspoon salt

Beat eggs into milk and set aside. Brown butter in saucepan. Remove from heat and add sugar, corn starch, salt, and flour.

Mix well. Add milk mixture and cook until thickened. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Cool. Top with graham cracker crumbs.

I knew I had to send this recipe when I saw the request for "Mother's Favorite Recipe."

My mother (Mabel Witmer) made this often for company on Sunday and for church dinners, and everyone enjoyed it.

NELLIE ROBERTS' POTATO SALAD

3-4 cups cooked, peeled, diced, and cooled potatoes
2 tablespoons diced onion
1 tablespoon vinegar
3 tablespoons sugar (sprinkle over potatoes)
Salt and pepper to taste
1½ cups mayonnaise
Few drops yellow food coloring (optional)
Celery seed
Sprinkle over top and stir in)
4-6 hard-boiled eggs, chopped, except slice half of one over top

Combine ingredients in order given. Taste to see if sweet, salty or sour enough. Add additional amounts if necessary to achieve the flavor desired.

I grew up enjoying my mom's potato salad. It was hard to calculate ingredients accurately because she always made it without measuring ingredients.

Win one of these prizes offered to readers who participate in the annual Dairy Recipe Contest. Lou Ann Good, staff writer for Lancaster Farming, said this year's prizes are the best ever and include more than those displayed.

Enter Dairy Recipe Contest To Win One Of These Prizes

Lancaster Farming salutes dairy farmers by holding an annual dairy recipe contest during June Dairy Month. The recipes remind us of all the wonderful dairy products available to produce culinary delights.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. Dairy ingredients include milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your recipe ingredients carefully. Margarine and non-dairy substitutes such as whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

The difference between this contest and the weekly recipes is that you are asked to include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you or with your family adds a wonderful touch to accompany the printed submission. Photos will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are 18-years-old or older, not children. Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address. If we do not have your complete mailing address, we cannot send your prize if you win.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 1 to be eligible for the drawing. The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners through a drawing. Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winning names will be printed in the July 1 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522.

Adams County Fruit Growers Host 45th Apple Blossom Festival

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

ARDENTSVILLE (Adams Co.) — Local fruit growers, craft vendors, and community organizations celebrated the 45th annual Apple Blossom Festival at the South Mountain Fairgrounds last weekend.

Due to the 90 degree temperatures, attendance at this year's Festival was down.

"We usually have a lot more people attend the two-day event," said Kathy Kliner from the Adams County Fruit Growers Association. "I think a lot of people stayed away this year just because it was so hot."

250 craft vendors and 40 food vendors had stands at the annual event. The event featured almost any food made with apples imaginable and apple events such as apple bobbing and apple pie eating contests. Antique tractor displays, live entertainment, and children's activities are also part of the event.

The Adams County Fruit Growers Association, which sponsors the event, offered 35-40 minute orchard bus tours to everyone who attended the event. A representative from the fruit industry talks to those on the tour about apple growing and answers questions during the tour.

The Festival featured activities and demonstrations for all ages. Children could have their faces painted, enjoy apple foods, and participate in contests.

The 45th annual Adams County Apple Blossom Festival was held last weekend at the South Mountain Fairgrounds. High temperatures kept attendance down, but not the fun.

On Sunday, the annual Apple Queen coronation is held. This year four contestants competed in the pageant. Lauren Hankey, daughter of Merle and Gina Hankey was crowned 2000-2001 Apple Queen. Lauren is 17 years old and a senior at Gettysburg High School.

A daughter of fruit growers was named this year's runner-up. Heidi Fetters is the 17-year-old daughter of Terry and Carol Fetter and a junior at Biglerville High School.

During the year, the Apple Queen will promote Adams County's apple industry through visiting area schools and making appearances at festivals, fairs, and other events.

The Fruit Growers Association sponsors the Apple Blossom Festival each year to celebrate the blossoms appearing on Adams County's 20,000 acres of orchards. Proceeds from the event are used for research and promotion of the apple industry.

"We donate some of the money to the Penn State Fruit Research Extension Center in Biglerville," said Kliner. "We also try to focus on whatever is affecting the fruit industry that particular year. This year we'll put money into plum pox virus research."

The Adams County Fruit Growers Association sponsor the Festival each year to promote the apple industry and celebrate the apple blossoms now seend all over Adams County.

HOT HOUSE
Far Infrared Rays (FIR) Health Builder

Within the magnetic spectrum, while some rays, such as light, can be seen by the unaided human eye, most are totally invisible to us. Far Infrared Rays (FIR) are well beyond the ability of the naked eye to see. FIR is capable of penetrating deep into the human body. It can gently and delightfully elevate the body's temperature. When it does so, it helps to expand capillaries which stimulates blood circulation. This increases the body's energy reserve, and accelerates the metabolic exchange between blood and body tissue. That's not all! FIR can actually increase the body tissue's regenerative ability. It also reduces abnormalities in nervous system and helps the autonomous system function properly.

QUESTION — Cindy Stahl has Alpine dairy goats that provide the family with more milk than needed. She would like recipes for milk-based recipes other than puddings, ice cream, cheese, butter, and milk soap. Non-dessert recipes would be most appreciated.

QUESTION — Herman Bean, Easton, writes that he is 78 years old. He remembers his grandmother made molasses cookies when he was a small boy. His mother still made them at 95 years of age but died 10 years ago and took the recipe with her. The dough was cut with flower or boy and girl-shaped cookie cutters. When baked, the cookies were about an inch thick, 4-inches high, and 2- or 3-inches wide. They were sort of a grayish color, soft, and had to be put into a can for a couple of days before eating. Bean said, he believes the cookies are a "Dutch favorite."

QUESTION — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, requests a recipe for canned pickled sausages or ring bologna.

QUESTION — A reader would like to have vanilla or lemon pudding recipes used to fill doughnuts.

A Little Selenium, An Essential Nutrient, Goes A LongWay

Selenium is a trace mineral and essential nutrient, but its importance in human health was revealed just 20 years ago. It's not surprising you haven't heard of it.

The new Recommended Dietary Allowance for selenium is just 55 micrograms a day. A microgram is one-millionth of a gram.

Selenium first gained attention in the mid-20th century when researchers realized a deficiency could cause farm animals to die during weaning. They added selenium to animal diets, and survival rates increased. Now, thanks in part to Ohio State University research, selenium is routinely added to infant formula and products designed to be a sole source of nutrients.

Among other things, selenium helps form four types of the enzyme glutathione peroxidase which fight peroxides that can damage cells and tissues. It also appears to be important in sperm formation. A severe selenium deficiency can lead to Keshan disease, a form of heart disease that strikes children and women of child-bearing age.

Luckily, most people get enough selenium from a balanced diet. Good sources usually include tuna and other seafood, liver, meat, pasta and grains.

The new recommendations for selenium also include a daily upper limit of 400 micrograms, but that takes into account a safety factor of 400-600 micrograms.

Grandma Right About Fiber

I was surprised to read that fiber doesn't help against colon cancer after all.

Does this mean a high-fiber diet is no longer important?

Not by a long shot. The studies you mention, published in March 2000, were disappointing but not totally unexpected.

First, the research studied only people who had already suffered from colon polyps, which are growths on the inner wall of the colon or rectum. About 40 percent of people over age 50 get polyps. About 5 percent to 10 percent of polyps become cancerous.

Two studies showed no difference in the rate of the recurrence of polyps between people put on special diets and those who weren't. The first study, conducted over four years, showed no effect from a low-fat, high-fiber, high fruit and vegetable diet. Another three-year study showed no difference between those eating a high fiber (13.5 grams) cereal each day compared with eating a low-fiber (2 grams) cereal each day.

That's probably what you read in the headlines. There's more to the story, though.

For one thing, colorectal cancer takes decades to develop. Dietary factors may affect the formation of polyps years before they can be detected. Even studies lasting three or four years might not show any effect if the process has already started. The researchers in both studies plan to continue following patients, watching for more long-term impacts.

Also, the polyps that did form in the study tended to be small.

Dietary factors might help prevent their growth into large polyps, or lower the risk that any large polyps develop into cancer. The studies did not look at those possibilities.

Fiber has other benefits, too. Soluble fiber has been linked with a decrease in blood cholesterol, so it may be helpful for people susceptible to heart disease. A high-fiber diet also can help prevent diverticulosis, a condition in which tiny pockets form in the colon. (Ironically, if you've already got diverticulosis and those pockets become inflamed, you need to severely limit fiber intake until the inflammation goes down).

High-fiber foods, like beans, whole grains, fruits and vegetables, also have vitamins, minerals and phytochemicals that may reduce cancer and offer other benefits. So don't write fiber off yet.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Born To Show Club

The Born to Show dairy club met on April 15. Under old business, leader Danny Hoover discussed a trip to Lancster, and member Benton Hoover talked about State 4-H Days.

Under new business, the club announced there will be a Dairy Leader's conference on July 22. The two-day trip to Vermont is scheduled for July 11 and 12, and the cost is $100. Also at the meeting, everyone received their project books.

Many ideas were presented at the meeting. Amanda Hoover discussed the adopt-a-grandparent program as a community service. Selling butterfiles and/or bulbs was discussed as a possible fund raiser.

The next meeting is May 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Ben Hibbard's farm. Everyone should bring their updated books to the meeting.

Cumberland County 4-H

The Cumberland County Light Horse and Pony Club will be holding an Open Horse Show. The horse show is one of the yearly fund raisers that the club holds.

The Open Horse Show will be held Sunday, May 21, at Bonny Brook Riding Club, 533 Mountain Road in Boiling Springs. Starting at 8:30 a.m., the show will be held rain or shine. Grand and reserve awards will be given to the divisions. English, Western, and Gaming classes will be held for both youth and open divisions, along with a walk/trot division.

4-H rules require all riders 18 and under to be wearing a helmet when mounted on their horse at any time. Proof of rabies vaccination and negative coggins are required for all horses. No one under the age of 8 is allowed to show.

A food stand will be provided by the members and parents of the club, so bring a good appetite. The club members welcome everyone to come participate in their show. Spectators are welcomed, and it is suggested they bring lawn chairs to spend the day.

Franklin County Dairy

A Holstein fall calf cosigned by Kyle Burdette, Mercersburg, topped the 2000 Franklin County Dairy Calf Sale held April 15 at the CV Antique Engine Show Grounds in Chambersburg.

The animal sold for $2,550 and was purchased by Jeremy Smith, Northampton. The second high selling animal was a Holstein winter calf cosigned by Robert Mong, Waynesboro, which sold for $1,600 to Thomas Priest.

23 calves were sold with the sale average of $941. Artificial insemination companies donating semen for the sale were Koons A.I. (ABS), Genex, Semex, Alta Genetics, Sire Power, and Select Sires. Other sale supporters included Pennfield, Purina, Agway, CV Cooperative, Cargill, IBA, Land O'Lakes, Monsanto, Sniders Elevator, Witmer Implements, and Mid-Maryland Dairy Veterinarians.

Larry Harshman, Chambersburg, was sale chairman. The aunctioneer was David Gossert. Jess Reasner of Newburg announced pedigrees. The 4-H Dairy Council sponsored the sale with profits used to support 4-H dairy educational programs in the county.

Baconeers 4-H Club

The Baconeers Swine Club held its second meeting of the year on March 26. After roll call, members were asked to introduce themselves by name, age, and school

The educational activity of the day was presented by John and David Corbin on pig terms. The boys went over some very basic terms, such as guilt and barrow. The also mentioned other pig terms that were unfamilar to the club, such as shote/shoat, which is a pig at 8 weeks old who has been weaned.

The next order of business was to develop a fund-raiser. Many ideas were given, but only two were voted on. The members voted between selling crispy creme donuts or having a square dance. Sponsoring a square dance won. Each individual was asked to bring a six pack of soda and a donated item to auction off. The square dance was held on April 29 at the Forest Lake Community Hall.

4-H leader Mrs. Corbin took over the meeting and announced some important dates, including swine tagging on April 29 at the Harford County Fairgrounds. The next meeting will be held on May 7 at 2 p.m. at Corbin's Turkey Farm. Denise and Dana Hardisky will present the educational activity, which will explain "How to Feed Your Pigs."

Berks Co. Beef

Members of the Berks County 4-H Beef Club elected their officers for the year 2000 at a recent meeting. Josh Krill, Bernville, was elected president and will be assisted by Kelly Dietrich, a senior at Tulpehocken High School, who was elected vice president. Kristy Dietrich and Jonathan Bicksler will be serving as secretary and treasurer respectively, each for their second term. Both are freshmen at Tulpehocken High School.

Members also signed up for various committees, such as beef promotion, decoration, community service, and scrapbook, and for different contests and activities that the club will be participating in. Some of those contests include the Skill-A-Thon and Beef Bowl at the PA Beef Expo at Penn State; a field day in May at the Ken and Ginger Brubaker Angus farm; the Reading Fair, scheduled for the week of August 7th to be held at the new fairgrounds behind the Berks County 4-H Center, followed by the Kutztown Fair at Kutztown.

There were four new members in the club this year, which brings total membership to 35. Both old and new members were welcomed and wished a fun and exciting year by this year's leaders.

Under new business, club members announced that there will be two petting zoos on May 6 at Fredericksburg. One of the events will be family night at the elementary school. On July 11 to 14, a teen leader conference will be held at the Lebanon Valley College with the cost being $75.00.

The North Mountain 4-H club field trip will be held on May 7 at 2 p.m. at Wildwood Lake Sanctuary. The trip includes an environmental/educational hike around the woods.

Pet project essays, including 500 words about what members learned with their pet projects, are due June 4. 4-H Camp will be held at the Hickory Run State Park on June 26 through 30.

Project demonstrations at the meeting included Cooking I, Small Engines, Cooking II, Sign Language, and Candle Making.

The next meeting will be held on May 22 at the Waterworks Fire Hall at 6:30 p.m.

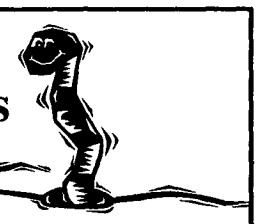
Squiggly, Wiggly Worms



Ever notice how you find worms in the yard after it rains? When you dig in the dirt you might run into them, too. But did you know they're good for more than fish bait?

They actually make the dirt good for growing healthy plants and food by increasing the amount of water and air that gets into soil. They break down leaves and grass so plants can use them, and they leave behind castings, which make a great fertilizer.

It's hard to tell one end from another when you see a worm. Even though they don't have a head like other animals, they have a head end, called the anterior. Their tail end is called the posterior. At the front end, the prostomium, a flap of skin, hangs over the worm's mouth to keep out stuff the worm doesn't like.

In between the ends, worms' bodies have a lot of rings called segments. A full-grown worm has 120 to 170 segments. Worms also have a band around their bodies called the clitellum. The clitellum helps form cocoons, and baby worms hatch from the cocoons.

Worms move with the help of their muscles. Circular muscles tighten to make their bodies long and thin, which moves the front end forward. Then long muscles squeeze together to move the rear end of the body toward the front end.

Even though worms have five hearts, they don't have lungs. Instead they breathe through their skin. In order for oxygen to get in though, their skin has to stay wet. But too much water can drown them.

To learn more about worms, visit the Web site www.urbanext.uiuc.edu/worms/index.html.

Worms like to eat:
- Fruit and vegetable peelings
- Cereals
- Cornmeal
- Crushed eggshells
- Coffee grounds
- Tea bags
- Newspaper

Worms don't like:
- Meat or chicken
- Animal bones
- Cheese
- Mayonnaise
- Greasy food
- Slick, colored paper

Worm Facts
- Earthworms came to the United States in plants that Pilgrims brought.
- Worms have no arms, legs or eyes.
- There are about 2,700 kinds of worms.
- The longest earthworm ever found was 22 feet long.
- If it's cut off, a worm can grow a new tail. However, a worm can't grow a new head.
- There can be more than 1 million worms in one acre of land.
- Baby worms are smaller than a piece of rice when they hatch.
- If exposed to light for too long, worms become paralyzed.
- Each day, a worm can eat its weight.

Mother's Love Keeps Growing

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

The home of Richard and Peg Kreider is an outstanding example of the saying that children learn to love by being loved.

"The more kids I have, the better I like it," Peg said.

In addition to three natural-born and two adopted, the Kreiders have had 21 foster children during the past 12 years — "and we want more," Peg said. "I love having kids around."

It's evident her kids also love having her around.

"She's really nice and 'carries on' with us," 8-year-old Marlina said of her mother.

Seven-year-old Lexus agreed. She's especially glad her mom takes her to soccer games.

The Kreiders' three teenagers are also vocal in expressing gratefulness for their mom.

"She's always been here for me. She's very supportive in all I do," 18-year-old Nate said.

Nicole, 15, expressed the same sentiment and added, "I can talk to her about everything."

"She's really caring and understanding whenever there's a problem," Ashley, 13, said.

Peg has always made her children a priority. She's there to see her children off to school, and there when they come home.

"I'm always available to talk. I want them always to feel free to talk with me about anything," Peg said.

For her, being a stay-at-home mom is the only way she sees this as possible. While some children don't verbalize their appreciation to having mom around, Nate did when he was in junior high school.

"I'll always remember the day he got off the bus, and said, 'thanks mom, for always being here for me,'" Peg said of the memory.

Because Nate turned 18, state law requires that he go through a police check and interview process for the family to remain a foster care home.

Although the requirement seems a bit ridiculous since Nate is a family member, the law does offer an advantage. Nate will now be counted as an adult, which enables the Kreiders to care for more children, because only a total of six children are allowed in the home.

"We've always promised Nate a little brother. In fact, we tried to adopt a boy several times, but it has never worked out," Peg said of the frustration of many children required to be returned to emotionally unstable home environments.

Some of the foster children have been in the Kreiders' care for one to two years, before being returned to a birth parent.

The separation is heartbreaking for the Kreiders. "I often cry," Peg said of the children she grew attached to and no longer sees. "Every day I pray for every child who has ever lived with us," she said. She also prays for each of her own children before they leave for school.

From little on up, Peg always loved children. She couldn't wait until she was old enough to babysit. She's still eager to babysit for others. In fact, she works as a nanny for her next-door neighbors. When her children leave for school, Peg goes next door to care for two children — soon to be three. At noon she brings them home with her so she can do her own housework and be home for her children when they return from school.

In addition to the whole family working out at the local gym, each child is encouraged to select a sport of their choice. Track, football, soccer and gymnastic practices keep Peg busy. The family is also active in church and take a lot of camping trips.

When asked where she gets her energy, Peg credits it to growing up on the farm. She grew up on a pig farm, her husband on a dairy farm. When they first married, Richard warned his wife, "I'll tell you one thing, I'll never have any pigs."

Guess what? As a swine technician, he oversees thousands of pigs, and both he and Peg are Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club leaders. The three oldest children raise pigs for 4-H projects, and the two youngest can't wait until they are old enough to become 4-H'ers and have their own pigs.

The Kreiders also raise 12 Herefords, which they market as hormone and antibotic-free beef.

Traditionally, the Kreiders will make their own cards for their mom on Mother's Day. But going out to eat will need to be delayed because "three kids have soccer games."

That's fine with Peg. Because there's nothing she likes better than cheering on her kids.

Daughters Share Mother's Love For Animals

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Mothers, research confirms, have a profound impact on their daughters. Subconsciously, daughters tend to imitate their mothers.

Kim, 19, and Stephanie, 14, are no exception.

The two sisters are animal lovers just like their mom Sharon Landis.

"I rescued everything I found when I was a little girl — baby birds, stray dogs, and turtles," Sharon said. "Now I'm involved in animal rescue and pet therapy."

Sharon also leads the 4-H Just Kiddin' Around Pygmy Goat Club, where daughter Kim serves as a teen leader to the 22 members.

The Landis family of Oregon View Farm have a menagerie of animals and businesses on their 56-acre farm, which has been in the family for four generations.

Dad Jay and two sons, Ryan, 21, and Jason, 16, take care of 35,000 laying hens, 30 steers, and crop farming.

Sharon and her daughters feed and milk 50 dairy goats for their certified goat dairy. In addition, the female members participate in Australian Cattle Dog Rescue.

Sharon explained that means their home is like a foster home for Australian cattle dogs who are abandoned by their owners.

"We keep the dogs until they can be placed in permanent homes. Generally, we have them between two weeks and 10 months," she said.

Surprises sometimes accompany abandoned dogs. Recently the animal shelter asked them to take a stray dog, which they assured them was not pregnant. Five days later, the stray had six puppies. Of course, the puppies are easy to love and the family is finding homes for each one.

The puppies are a big asset to the family's pet therapy program. When requested, they take puppies and goats to a nearby retirement home. Petting animals is considered therapeutic for patients and those in adult daycare.

After becoming interested in teaching dogs to herd, Sharon read a lot on the subject, attended a few herding clinics, and now trains other dogs.

"I'm just a novice, but I've trained several," Sharon said.

Five years ago, the Landis family developed a goat dairy almost by accident. Sharon had developed an allergy to cow's milk. Because they already had pygmy goats, she decided to add a milking goat to their collection.

Goat milk is easier to digest and doctors often recommend it for those with allergies or with other health problems. The children loved drinking goat milk and eating ice cream made from the goat milk. By word-of-mouth, others started asking if they could buy milk.

Government regulations for goat dairies are similar to cow dairies. To attain a raw milk license, water and grounds must be tested, and lab testing is required twice a month. The milking parlor must be built to state specifications.

The Landis family said they had little difficulty complying with the regulations and setting up the operation to sell certified raw milk.

They use a milking machine to milk twice daily. Milk is put into a bulk tank for customers to tap into their own containers.

In order to maintain a year-round supply of milk, goats are bred out of season. Most of the customers hear about the dairy through word-of-mouth or from flyers placed at local health food stores.

The girls take turns feeding and milking the herd, which requires about 1½ hours twice daily. When they first began milking, Sharon posted a sign in the milking parlor to remind the children of the necessity of cleanliness. The sign reads: If teat isn't clean enough to put your mouth on, it isn't clean enough to put the inflations (milkers) on.

"They were a bit grossed out by the sign, but it had the desired effect," Sharon said. "They quickly learned how important it was to keep everything clean."

When led into the parlor, the goats jump up on the milking stand and munch on feed while being brushed, washed, sanitized, dipped, and milked.

Of all the animals, Stephanie likes the goats best. Everyone is named and the family said they have no problem identifying them. Each have their own favorite.

All the children are homeschooled until ninth grade when they enroll in Lancaster Mennonite High School.

Kim, a senior at Lancaster Mennonite High and vice-president of its FFA, will graduate June 3. She plans to work a year on the family farm and then take a two- or four-year course to become a vet technician.

Both girls are accomplished cooks. Kim explained that they had to do all the cooking and chores when their mother had to undergo operations for carpal tunnel on both wrists. It took two years, but Sharon reports her hands are as good as new now.

Ask Sharon which is harder to raise — animals or children?

"Children," she answers quickly with a grin. "If you become stressed, you can put an animal in a cage — but what do you do with children?"

On Mother's Day, Sharon will have a chance to relax. Her children and husband do the farm chores, take her out to eat, and give her plants to fill her flower beds.

Here is one of the family's favorite recipes using goat milk.

Goat Milk Ice Cream
4-quarts

Scald 4 cups milk in double boiler. Combine:
4 beaten eggs
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt

Add 6 tablespoons scalded milk to mixture and stir. If chocolate flavor is desired, add 3 squares melted baking chocolate. Pour mixture into double boiler with scalded milk. Stir constantly until slightly thickened. Cool. Add:
4 cups goat's milk
6 teaspoons vanilla

Stir until combined. Freeze in ice cream freezer according to directions for hand or machine.

Children and animals are nurtured on Oregon View Farm. Sisters Stephanie, left, and Kim, right, hold the puppies from a Rescue dog with Mom Sharon and the Australian herding dog that she is training.

Richard takes a turn at tapping goat milk from the bulk tank. The farm has been in his family for four generations.

Kim feeds the Alpine goats. The 50 head are each named, recognized, and pampered by Kim, Stephanie, and Sharon.

Celebrate A Great American Anniversary...The Day Cows Came to America — May 14, 1611

Noreen Rouse
Sullivan Co. Dairy Princess

Milk...wholesome, soothing, nutritious. If you can hardly imagine life without milk, cheese, ice cream or butter, then you can certainly appreciate the significance of the first dairy cow's arrival in America. Indeed, that was a happy occasion for the colonists and a history-making day for American cuisine and nutrition.

When the colonists arrived in the new land in 1607, they discovered many riches, but no cows and therefore no milk, no butter and no cheese. Four years later, on May 14, 1611, when the first cow arrived at Jamestown, Virginia, the pilgrims shared their good fortune with their friendly Indian hosts. Historical accounts tell how Cherokees, who had never known livestock before, were particularly impressed by the cow's velvety elixir.

The cow thrived on the great, unspoiled continent, but dairying on a big scale was still a long way off. Until the 1850s, every family had its own cow. Excess milk was used for cheese and butter, but little was sold since transportation was by horse and wagon and no refrigeration was available. If you wanted milk when you traveled, then you took the cow with you. Pioneers took their cows into unsettled territories and even Admiral Richard E. Byrd the famous explorer, took cows with him when he went to the South Pole.

Several innovations in the mid-1800s changed the status of the family cow. In 1841, the first regular shipment of milk by rail was made from Orange County, New York to New York City. In 1856, Gail Borden invented the condensed milk process. Refrigeration came into use in 1880. The first pasteurizing machine was introduced in 1895, and the first compulsory pasteurization law was passed in Chicago in 1908.

Improvements in dairying through the years have meant that one cow can now produce the milk that it once took ten cows to produce.

Control Weeds

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — How would you define a weed?

A nasty plant that causes you angst? A creeping vine that overtakes your lawn?

A further description might be that it is a plant that is not wanted. Whatever your definition, a weed is simply a plant growing out of place. To farmers, corn in a soybean field is a weed to gardeners, last year's tomatoes sprouting in the green bean patch can be called weeds. Generally, but not always, weeds are hard to eliminate.

What can you do about these pesky plants that grow where you don't want them? There are several ways to control them.

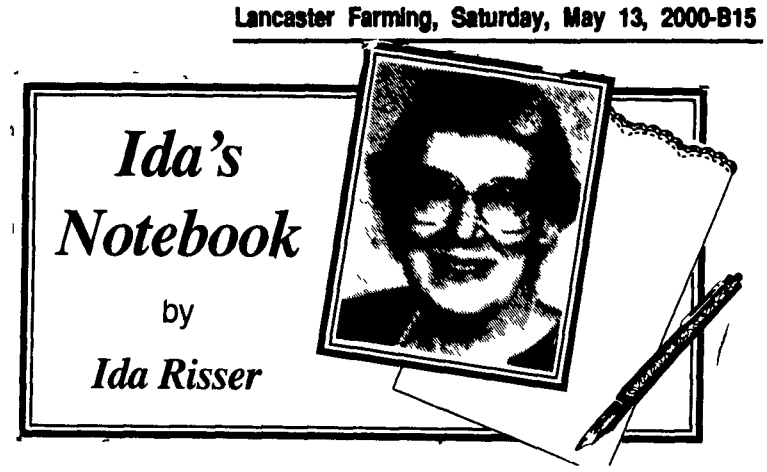
First, consider prevention. Removing undesirable plants before they flower and develop seeds will reduce the number of weed seeds added to your garden. Most weeds produce a huge number of seeds. When adding mulch or compost to your garden, be sure that it is weed free. Old weedy hay may be a cheap source of mulch, but it could add unwanted weed seeds that you would have to deal with in future years. While hot composting may kill many seeds, cold composting may not. Remember too, that many seeds lie dormant in the soil for years, so prevention will not guarantee a weed free yard.

Secondly, consider control methods. Mulching is effective in preventing weeds from growing in gardens. Mulch smothers weeds by depriving them of sunlight. Organic mulches such as grass clippings or compost are effective in improving the garden soil by increasing the amount of organic matter. Wood chips can deplete soil nitrogen unless fertilizer is added. To be effective, mulches should be applied several inches thick—additional mulch may be needed later in the growing season. If weeds still poke through the mulch or grow in your lawn, try elimination. Depending on the type and number of weeds, various approaches can be used. Many weeds can be removed effectively and safely by physical control methods such as hoeing or pulling. This usually works for a few dandelions or in vegetable gardens when weeds are small. Usually, they are easy to pull when mulch is used.

The last method is chemical control. For some hard to destroy or creeping types of weeds, this can be the only way to get rid of them. When using chemicals, follow directions carefully. If they chemical is misused, drifts in the wind, or washes into storm sewers, it could cause death or injury to desirable plants as well as to pets, wildlife, or people.

If all else fails, live with them. The weed free perfect lawn is a relatively recent phenomenon. Sometimes the effort needed to maintain a showcase weed free lawn is more trouble than its worth. With the widespread use of bluegrass and the application of broadleaf weed killers routinely applied to many yards, no wonder it is increasingly difficult to find that proverbial four-leaf cover!

For this or similar backyard conservation practices, visit Land Resource Days at Agawam Farms, on September 8 and 9. For more information on the event, call the NRCS office at (717) 278-1011, ext. 101, the Conservation District at (717) 278-4600 ext. 280 or Cooperative Extension at (717) 278-1158.



There is lots of work to do outside when it is not raining. So far we have had plenty of moisture and everything is growing. This includes the weeds in the flower beds and the strawberry bed too.

There is more rhubarb growing along our rail fence than we can use. Some will be given away and some will be frozen. My husband has ordered more roses as some died over the winter. He has also planted more apple and apricot trees.

Now that my braided rug is finally finished, I can devote my time to outside work such as trimming grass along the porches. Even though I hated to do it, I asked my husband to cut down a pretty 10 foot cedar tree growing very close to the house. It was very pretty but only a few feet from the house's foundation.

While we had visitors, I took several trips with them. One day we drove to Hershey. Here we saw "Hershey's Chocolate World" and walked through a lush jungle setting. There is an educational tour which tells us the process of chocolate making. Children enjoy the ride on the tour cars and so do the adults if their feet are tired.

The gift shops are an unusual experience as you will see more candy than you've ever seen in one place. It is packaged in every shape and form. There is also a place to dine on sandwiches and soup or a full meal. There is no entry fee.

Soon I shall have to put some of my houseplants in the garden. A few have died over the winter. I'll buy impatiens and begonias for the outside flower beds. But for now I am enjoying the pink and white tulips around our mailboxes.

Why Do Flowers Have Different Colors?

Why do flowers have different colors?

Flowers use their colors for survival!

Every color in a flower has a specific role. Almost all flowers have green parts. The green comes from chlorophyll, a substance that helps flowers make food from sunshine. Other colors, such as red, purple, yellow and blue, help attract insects and birds - which then help the flowers make seeds for next year.

First, some background. People can only see colors in a range that's called the visible light spectrum. It includes all the colors in a rainbow, plus white and black. Some insects see part of this visible spectrum, but they can also see what's called ultraviolet colors.

Flowers that want to attract insects have both visible and ultraviolet colors in their petals. Bees and other insects know they will find sweet, sugary nectar and pollen near the ultraviolet colors.

Come Into My Parlor

"Will you walk into my parlor?"
Said a spider to a fly;
'Tis the prettiest little parlor
That ever you did spy.
The way into my parlor
Is up a winding stair,
And I have many pretty things
To show when you are there."
"Oh, no, no!" said the little fly,
To ask me is in vain;
For who goes up your winding stairs,
Can ne'er come down again."
"I'm sure you must be weary
With soaring up so high;
Will you rest upon my little bed?"
Said the spider to the fly.
"There are pretty curtains drawn around,
The sheets are fine and thin;
And if you like to rest awhile,
I'll snugly tuck you in."
"On, no, no!" said the little fly,
"For I've often heard it said,
They never, never wake again,
Who sleep upon your bed."
Said the cunning spider to the fly,
"Dear Friend, what shall I do,
To prove the warm affection
I've always felt for you?
I have, within my pantry,
Good store of all that's nice;
I'm sure you're very welcome—
Will you please take a slice?"
"Oh, no, no!" said the little fly
"Kind sir, that cannot be;
I've heard what's in your pantry,
And I do not wish to see."
"Sweet creature," said the spider,
"You're pretty and you're wise;
How handsome are your gauzy wings,
How brilliant are your eyes.
I have a little looking glass
Upon my parlor shelf;
If you'll step in one moment, dear,
You shall behold yourself."
"I thank you, gentle sir," she said,
"For what you're pleased to say,
And bidding you good-morning now,
I'll call another day."

The spider turned him round about,
And went into his den,
For well he knew the silly fly
Would soon be back again;
So he wove a subtle wet
In a little corner sly,
And set his table ready
To dine upon the fly.
He went out to his door again,
And merrily did sing,
"Come hither, hither, pretty fly,
With pearl and silver wing;
Your robes are green and purple,
There's a crest upon your head;
Your eyes are like the diamond bright,
But mine are dull as lead."
Alas, Alas! How very soon
This silly little fly
Hearing his wily, flattering words,
Came slowly flitting by;
With buzzing wings she hung aloft,
Then near and nearer drew—
Thought only of her brilliant eyes,
And green and purple hue,
Thought only of her crested head—
Poor foolish thing! At last
Up jumped the cunning spider and fiercely held her fast.
He dragged her up his winding stair,
Into his dismal den
Within his little parlor-but
She ne'er came out again!
And now, dear little children
Who may this story read,
To idle, silly, flattering words,
I pray you ne'er give heed;
Unto an evil counselor
Close heart and ear and eye,
And take a lesson from this tale
Of the spider and the fly.

Select Sires Completes Record-Breaking Year

PLAIN CITY, Ohio, — "Nineteen hundred ninety-nine will go down as a banner year for the Select Sires federation," said General Manager David Thorbahn in his opening remarks to the cooperative's board of directors held at its annual meeting.

"Select Sires members and distributors, armed with the industry's leading genetics, expanded sales to over six million units and domestic market share grew 1 percent to nearly one-third. And financially, Select recorded its 28th consecutive year of positive net margins," he said. "This all comes as a result of listening to producers and offering the products they demand with the highest level of customer service."

Thorbahn's comments then looked forward with a focus on his vision of Select's future. "Our future outlook is for continued success and leadership. Select Sires has a solid balance sheet, strong reserves, superior product, a staff of dedicated and knowledgeable employees, and a forward-thinking board of directors. We are positioned to enter the new century with confidence in our ability to serve the global cattle industry with the best genetic offering and information available."

There was much to celebrate at this gathering as the Select Sires marketing team, member and nonmember combined, shattered their 5.8 million unit sales goal for 1999 by selling more than six million units.

"In 1999, we truly put the people and product power of Select Sires to work," said Bill Thompson, vice president - marketing and development. "Consistently high productivity from all the great people working for the Select federation allowed us to exceed our goal."

Thompson honored four of Select's member cooperatives for their leadership in dairy and beef semen sales. Cache Valley/Select Sires achieved the high percent increase and the high market penetration increase in dairy sales while COBA/Select Sires took home the award for high unit increase. In the beef sales arena, All-West/Select Sires was the big winner, earning the high unit increase and the high percent increase. The award for high market penetration increase in beef sales went to KABA/Select Sires.

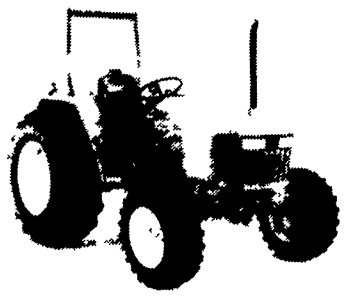
Semen sales in their international markets were strong as well. Nineteen hundred ninety-nine was Select's highest year ever for international unit sales with semen being marketed to 65 different countries.

For the seventh straight year, the Select Mating Service (SMS) evaluated more than one million cows in the U.S.A. with about 1.8 million recommendations in 1999, an increase of more than 253,000 matings over the previous year.

SMS continues to grow both domestically and worldwide. The program is utilized in 17 Latin American countries and in 20 countries throughout Europe, Africa, Asia, Oceania, and the Middle East.

Select's board of directors, made up of farmer-directors from the 10 member co-ops, reelected its current slate of officers to guide the future of the industry's most influential AI cooperative. Ohio Holstein breeder Charles Moellendick continues as president, David Timm from Oregon leads as first vice president, and Kentucky's Charles Shackelford serves as second vice president.

Compact Utility Tractor Offers Deluxe Features



The 990's collar shift transmission gives the user a choice of nine forward and three reverse speeds.

MOLINE, Ill. — Customers looking for a hard-working machine with basic features and deluxe options will find what they are looking for in the John Deere 990 Compact Utility Tractor. The 990 is the latest addition to the company's economy tractor lineup.

The Yanmar 40-hp diesel engine has direct fuel injection, providing quick starts and increased fuel economy. This engine meets all year 2000 emission standards, is cleaner-burning, and offers reduced sound levels.

The 990's collar shift transmission gives the user a choice of nine forward and three reverse speeds. Two-wheel drive is standard for this machine; however, customers may opt for four-wheel drive and a standard differential lock that allow for increased traction and shift-on-the-go engagement.

To optimize performance, John Deere has installed dual hydraulic pumps in the model 990. These pumps give a constant flow of oil to both the power steering and implements. Dual selective control valves are offered as optional equipment. In the event the machine runs out of fuel, an auto-bleed fuel system feature allows operators to simply fill the tank and go. Additional dual element fuel filters protect the engine providing long life and high reliability.

For additional safety, standard equipment includes transmission and PTO operator presence systems as well as rollover protection systems. Wet disk brakes, a two-stage dry clutch, power steering, and planetary fuel drives are also standard on this compact tractor.

The 990 compact tractor is equipped with a planetary final drive that is usually found on large farm or construction equipment. This drive distributes the weight of rear implements over three points, greatly increasing the model 990's service life.

The 990's rear hitch arms adapt to a wide variety of John Deere implements.

New Desiccant Available

WILMINGTON, Del. — Zeneca Ag Products has announced it will replace the Diquat brand herbicide/desiccant with an improved diquat formulation marketed under the brand name Reglone®. Reglone is available for the 2000 growing season.

"Reglone delivers the same effective, uniform vine kill potato growers have counted on over the years," said Dale Chaney, Zeneca's North America potato crop lead. "The improved formulation makes the product cleaner to work with, and easier to mix, load and apply."

Reglone acts as a non-residual and non-translocating potato desiccant, resulting in more bulking, less discoloration, greater uniformity, and better skin set. The product is rainfast within 30 minutes after application, and is effective in cool or warm weather conditions.

Zeneca will begin distributing Reglone in June.

"Reglone is an excellent addition to Zeneca's premium line of products for the potato market," said Chane. "Reglone, Eptam® herbicide, and Quadris® and Bravo® fungicides are powerful tools to ensure the best potato yields, quality and size at harvest."

Reglone is also labeled for preharvest desiccation of alfalfa, clover, grain sorghum, and soybean seed crops. In addition, Reglone can be used on nonbearing tree, small fruit, and vegetable crops for weed control during site preparation prior to planting and up to one year before harvest.

Knight Introduces New, Larger Mixer

BRODHEAD, Wis. — Knight Manufacturing Corporation has announced the addition of a new, larger 700 cubic foot Reel Auggie to their proven line of Reel Auggie mixers.

The 3070 features the patented reel and auger mixing design that minimizes feed breakdown and requires less horsepower than conventional mixers. The gentle tumbling action of the reel lifts material into the two side blending augers to produce the fastest and most thoroughly blended ration on the market today.

Reel Auggies now range from 150 to 700 cubic feet and are offered in trailer, truck, and stationary models.

Corn Growers Will Need To Segregate Crop To Keep Huge Japanese Corn Market

WASHINGTON, D.C. — If American corn growers want to keep corn supplies moving to Japan, producers will have to segregate their genetically modified (GMO) crops from non-GMOs.

That message was delivered by the largest Japanese corn buyer to those attending the American Corn Growers Association (ACGA) workshop on GMOs in Spokane, Wash. recently.

Fugi Seyama, department manager of feed grain department for Marubeni America Corporation, told the gathering of farmers that Japan buys more than 16 million tons of corn a year, of which 95 percent or about 15.891 million tons comes from the U.S.

Because Japanese consumers continue to grow increasingly concerned about genetically modified food products, Japan demands that portions of their non-GMO corn imports, earmarked for human food consumption, be kept separate from those that are GMO. These imports that must be non-GMO amounted to 1.2 million metric tons last year, with the numbers growing dramatically this year and in the future.

To meet the new labeling requirements of Japan, identity preserved handling will be necessary in order to label products as "identity preserved non-GMO product." And processed foods made from GMOs will have to be labeled as "genetically modified" or "not segregated from GM product."

To meet strict segregation requirements and to receive a premium from American elevators, U.S. farmers must sign a certificate that states they have grown, harvested, segregated, and delivered in an identity preserved manner production varieties of non-GMO corn. In addition, the certificate will state that farmers did not knowingly co-mingle or mix in GMO crops and that if they did, any premiums being offered for non-GMOs would be lost.

"The demands of Japan and mandatory segregation are additional burdens falling on U.S. farmers over the issue of genetically modified crops," said Gary Goldberg, chief executive officer of the American Corn Growers Association. "With Japan being the largest single buyer of American corn, any requirements to meet this important and vital market will have to be met."

The segregation and labeling requirements by the Japanese government and the continued rejection of GMO exports to Europe have made it difficult for U.S. farmers to keep planting GMO crops. Recent surveys conducted by the ACGA and the USDA shows a sizable reduction in GMO planted acres for 2000 compared to 1999.

"The ACGA is concerned that the responsibility for segregation of GMO from non-GMO crops will fall squarely on the shoulders of U.S. farmers. Since most grain elevators are not physically equipped to handle segregation, farmers will have to achieve that requirement on their own individual farms. This will add substantially higher costs for segregation, testing, and certification. Costs that American farmers will have to pay themselves," said Goldberg.

"Many farmers would like to have GMOs as part of their planting options for the future. However, the questions of marketability, the additional burdens and costs of segregation, testing and certification, and the concerns over legal liability are making farmers take a second look at this technology, as evidence by the increase in conventional seed planting for this growing season," said Goldberg.

Risk-Sharing Program

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – Growers planning to participate in Monsanto's Roundup TVP™ Rewards program should follow program guidelines carefully to maintain eligibility for the program.

The innovative risk-sharing program could be especially important this year, given continued concern about drought across large regions of the Corn Belt, said Bart Baudler, Monsanto marketing manager.

"Last year more than 32,000 farmers from across the Midwest received program benefits," said Baudler. "It is important that growers are aware of eligibility guidelines so they can make use of the program's benefits if severe weather affects their crops."

Under the Roundup TVP Rewards program, technology costs of certain Roundup Ready® and YieldGard® crops are refunded if the crop is destroyed and cannot be replanted. If there is time to replant, Monsanto waives the technology costs/seed premium if the field is replanted with the same Monsanto technology.

To be eligible for all Roundup TVP Rewards Program benefits, labeled Roundup® brands, Field Master® or Ready Master ATZ™ or other qualifying residual products must be the only herbicides used for burndown and/or in-crop applications with any Monsanto technology crop. Benefits are not available if Monsanto technology crops are treated with other herbicides containing glyphosate or sulfosate, either as a burndown or an in-crop treatment.

"Growers receive tremendous benefits when they buy Roundup brand herbicides along with Roundup Ready and YieldGard technology," said Baulder. "If weather destroys the crop, growers don't get to realize those benefits. That's why we refund the premium paid for the technology."

The program also includes a week-control assurance benefit. If growers follow TVP Premium Performance Plan recommendations and experience an unexpected flush of annual weeks prior to canopy closure in soybeans, or prior to the V8 or a 30-inch height in corn. Monsanto will provide up to 24 ounces per acre of Roundup Ultra® herbicide for retreatment.

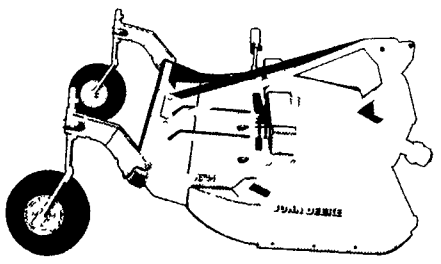
NEW JOHN DEERE ROTARY CUTTERS



- Double-decker design is twice as strong as cutters with a single deck.
- The clean bottom deck promotes better airflow for better cutting/distribution.
- The top deck is domed. Water and grass roll off, preventing water buildup and rust.
- Available in 5- to 14-foot cutting widths, for mid- and heavy-duty applications.

TWICE AS STRONG - Units In Stock 4' to 20'

EXCLUSIVE SHEARBAR PROTECTION COLLISION INSURANCE

Shearhubs, an exclusive John Deere feature, are standard equipment on all rotary MoCo's. Should the cutterbar receive a severe impact - from a rock, tree stump, or worse - the hub shears, protecting the inner gears. A shearhub costs about $40 to replace, and can be carried in the field. Compare that to the cost of repairing or replacing a complete cutterbar assembly on another machine. Then visit us for details. We can help make sure you're covered.

Top Producers Choose Knight!

Congratulations to the La-Foster Farm

Terry and Gerald Foster are very proud of their record-breaking cow, Lucy, and rightly so. She produced 75,260 pounds of milk in her last lactation. They are also pleased with their Knight Reel Auggie® mixers, which, combined with the Foster's excellent management practices, have propelled the La-Foster herd average to the #1 milk production status in North Carolina. There is no comparison to the complete, palatable blend from a Knight Reel Auggie, with its patented reel and auger blending combination. Why else would the La-Foster Farm choose only Knight to feed their record-setting herd?

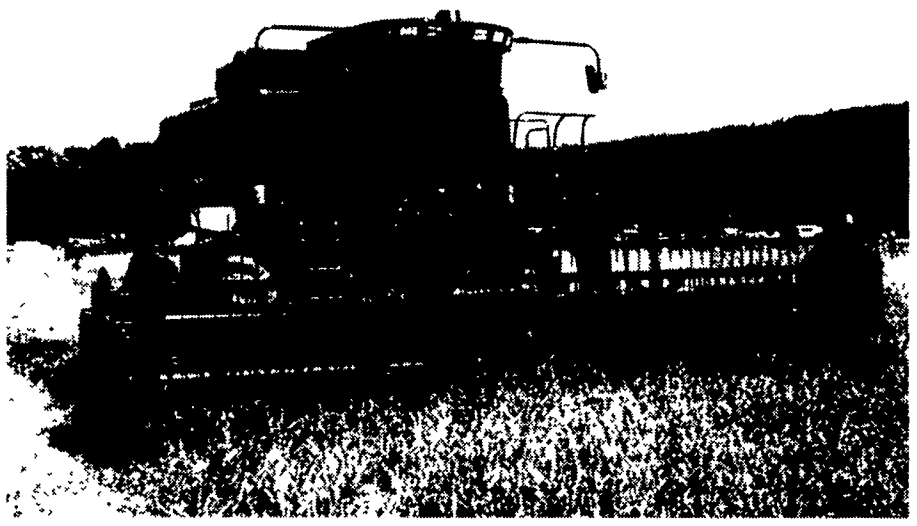
NEED USED EQUIPMENT? T

LEADING THE COMBINE REVOLUTION SINCE 1977



In 1977, Hoober, Incorporated and Case-IH began a combine revolution by introducing the Case-IH Axial-Flow Combine. Since then, Case-IH has become the unquestioned leader in rotary combine technology, while Hoober has sold and serviced more Rotary Axial-Flow combines than any other eastern dealer.

Today, nearly 25 years later, others have attempted to follow, but Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow combines are still the best rotary combine on the market. With only ONE moving part in it's entire threshing/separating process . . . a single large-diameter rotor, Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow combines have fewer moving parts than any other rotary combine. Fewer moving parts means fewer problems.

And when it comes to servicing the most productive combine in farming, no dealer understands the Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine better than Hoober. Hoober has worked with Axial-Flow technology since 1977 and has a complete staff of service specialists who devote 100% of their time to combine service.

To put more quality grain in the tank than with any other harvesting system, go with the rotary combine and dealer that are simply the best. The Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine and Hoober, Inc.

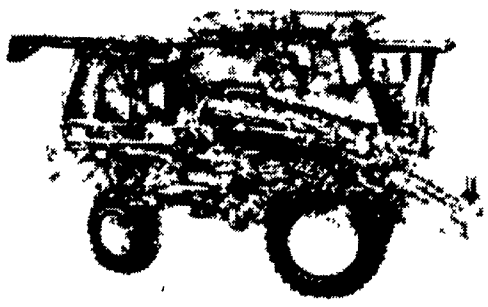
ALL-NEW STS COMBINES!



THE SINGLE TINE-SEPARATION MODULE IS AT THE HEART OF THE NEW STS COMBINES

- Advanced Harvesting Solutions
- Superior Feeding Performance
- Feed Accelerator
- Integrated Stone Protection
- Auger-Type Flighting
- Three-Step Outer Cage
- All-New Threshing Pads
- Deere Tine Separation
- Short for Feed Accelerator & Stone Trap

FEATURING:
John Deere's Revolutionary Single Tine-Separation Concept

IN STOCK
Ready for Inspection

THRESHING & SEPARATING

- A concentric cage throughout the full length of the rotor, the John Deere STS Module features a stair-step design. This gives the crop mat room to expand as it travels through the separator module, reducing the chances for roping and lowering power requirements. The pull-and-release action frees trapped grain in the crop mat, boosting grain savings significantly.
- STS Combines can be equipped with your choice of three concaves
- Austempered carbidic iron - an innovative new casting that provides excellent abrasive resistance and durability
- A dual-range separator drive gives you a wide range of speeds to match conditions.

ENGINE

- John Deere POWERTECH® Engine, Power Boost, Power Bulge
- With the STS Combines, you get wide open access to the tine separator rotor, concaves and separator grates.
- Brisk harvesting speeds are just the beginning with a John Deere 50 Series STS Combine
- Plus, there are no daily lube points on the entire machine. In fact, the shortest lube interval is 50 hours.

CLEANING

- The All-New DynoFlo™ Cleaning System
- A new cleaning fan - a single, 12-blade scroll-type design
- With only three settings on the DynoFlo System - (cleaning fan speed, main chaffer and sieve), you can adjust easily from one crop to the next.

Rhubarb Fest May 19-20th At Kitchen Kettle Village

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Its easy to see why the annual Rhubarb Festival at Kitchen Kettle Village made this years Top 100 Events in North America list by the American Bus Association. Where else can you enjoy so many family activities that salute this colorful harbinger of spring - from the Worlds Only Rhubarb Race Car Derby, where the mini dragsters are made of rhubarb stalks and electronically timed for the fastest finish—to the Best Rhubarb Pie in Lancaster County Baking Contest, a Rollicking Rhubarb Stroll led by Rhupert Rhubarb, a Rhubarb Arcade of Games, Quilting Demonstration (yes, the design involves rhubarb), plus a great collection of rhubarb-inspired food, beverages and desserts.

Now in its 17th year, the Rhubarb Fest has been expanded to two days rain or shine - Friday, May 19th, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Saturday, May 20th, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

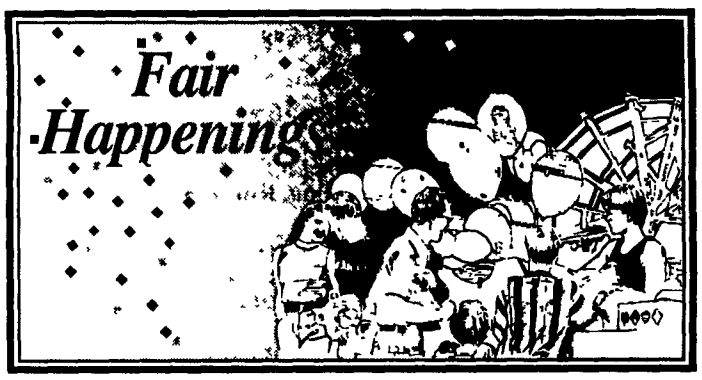
On Friday (May 19th) the festivities begin with the judging of the Best Rhubarb Pie in Lancaster County Pie Baking Contest at 10:15 a.m.

Saturdays (May 20th) special events begins with the Rhubarb Derby Finals at 11 a.m. (Rhubarb Derby Car Kits will be available).

Throughout both days there will be Rhubarb Food Sampling tables and outdoor quilting, plus a Childrens Rhubarb Arcade featuring unsupervised games - Rhubarb Hop Scotch, Rhubarb Pick-up Sticks, a hunt for Rosy Red Rhubarb, Rhubarb In-the-Jar Guessing Game, a Which is the Real Rhubarb? game, Rhubarb Face Painting and Hair Spraying (red and green, of course!) and the Worlds One & Only Rhubarb Tree.

Kitchen Kettle Village is located on Rt. 340 in the Village of Intercourse, 10 miles east of Lancaster. The festival is open to the public free of charge, and plenty of free parking is available on the Village grounds. A color brochure is available that outlines all activities and events scheduled throughout the year. For more information call or write: Kitchen Kettle Village, Rt. 340, Intercourse, PA 17534. Telephone: (800) 732-3538. (717) 768-8261.

Finding the best rhubarb pie in Lancaster County is only part of the festivities slated at the 17th Annual Rhubarb Festival at Kitchen Kettle Village. It's a family affair filled with music, games and live entertainment, plus food tastings and demonstrations. The event runs May 19-20th in Intercourse.



Schuylkill County Fair Sets Entertainment

The Schuylkill County Fair continues to grow and has scheduled the best week-long entertainment Schuylkill County has ever seen.

The 17th annual Schuylkill County Fair will be Aug. 7-12 at the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds, Summit Station.

More than 30,000 visitors enjoyed last year's fair. This year's entertainment line-up, as well as the addition of week-long events, including Randall's Racing and Diving Pigs and Bobby Pleis Juggling and Unicycling Show, should have everyone wanting to go to the Schuylkill County Fair. This year's theme is "Have We Got A Fair For You!"

Monday, Aug. 7, Alcoa Day, local oldies favorites, the Mudflaps, will be followed by a fireworks display. On Tuesday, Jessica Andrews, who was just named by the Academy of Country Music as the top new female vocalist, will grace the main stage. Andrews, a 16 year-old rising country music star, sang her new hit, "Unbreakable Heart," on the CMA awards ceremony on May 3. She recently performed on the Donny and Marie Show and was featured on CMT's "On the Verge," a new limited series focusing on artists in route to star status. Last year she spent her tour schedule opening for Faith Hill and this spring she will tour with Trisha Yearwood.

Wednesday, Gospel favorites the Hoppers will take the stage on Senior Citizen Day. The Hoppers, back by popular demand, scored their first number one hit in 1990. Since that time, four of their releases have peaked at number one, including their most recent release, "Anchor to Power." In fact, no southern gospel-recording artist has enjoyed more number one hits or more top five single releases than the Hoppers.

On Thursday, Wright's RV Rental and Peak RV Sales Day, the rock and roll greats, Cornell Gunther's Coasters, will perform. The Coasters were the first group inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987. See the Coasters perform their greatest hits, including "Charlie Brown," "Yakety Yak," "Searchin," and "Poison Ivy," to name a few.

Thanks to Schaeffer's Harley Davidson, Chad Brock, top new male vocalist nominee at the Academy of Country Music Awards will return to the Schuylkill County Fair. Brock's number one hit, "Ordinary Life," is being challenged by his new release, "Yes." Dauphin County Introduces Royalty For New Millennium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On May 14 at 7 p.m., Dauphin County will crown a new dairy princess alternate, a dairy miss, and two little misses to be held at Great-View Farm.

The new dairy princess will be Heidi Miller, 17-year-old daughter of Mike and Linda Miller, a junior at Central Dauphin High School. She is the president of Lower Dauphin 4-H Dairy Club and involved in showing her Holstein dairy projects. School activities include National Honor Society, C.D. Singers, accompanist for orchestra, choir and school play. She also is church pianist at Devonshire Church and very involved in the youth group. Heidi is employed part time at Giant Foods in the floral department.

She will be crowned by Jayanna Kopp, a former Dauphin County Princess.

Serving as alternate will be Heidi's 16-year-old sister, Holly, a sophomore at C.D. High School. Holly is club photographer for Lower Dauphin 4-H Dairy Club and enjoys showing her Brown Swiss and Holstein dairy projects. She is a member of the Chanson Singers at C.D. and also sings in a mixed gospel quartet with sister Heidi. Holly also is active in her church youth group. She enjoys the farm and helps with the chores daily.

The Dairy Miss will be Rachel Crissinger, 9-year-old daughter of Karen and Kenneth Crissinger from Gratz. Rachel is in the third grade at Emanuel Weslyan Academy. Rachel is involved in Brownies and Ta Kuon Do. She also keeps with the farm chores on her parents' farm.

The county's first "Lil Miss" is Abigail Crissinger, 7-year-old daughter of Karen and Kenneth Crissinger. She is in the second grade at Emanuel Weslyan Academy. She too is involved in Brownies and Ta Kuon Do.

The second "Lil Miss" is Emily Miller, 6-year-old daughter of Jeff and Cristy Miller from Harrisburg. She is a kindergarten student at Fishing Creek Valley Elementary School. Emily is involved in Daisies and Praise Kids Children's Choir at Devonshire Church. Her interests are piano and being actively involved in farm chores. She loves animals and can usually be found with her cousins Heidi and Holly, leading and preparing their animals for 4-H competitions.

Corn Growers Disappointed In FDA Decision To Call For Only Voluntary GMO Labeling

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The American Corn Growers Association (ACGA) has learned that the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) will recommend the voluntary labeling of genetically modified organism (GMO) food products.

The big losers are U.S. consumers who deserve the right to know what is in their food products and farmers who will continue to lose consumer confidence and overseas markets to foreign competitors.

Because of safety and environmental concerns, many foreign consumers are rejecting GMO products. Europe, Asia, Australia, and New Zealand are all addressing this issue by calling for mandatory labeling. A growing list of domestic customers, such as McDonald's, Burger King, Frito-Lay, IAMS Pet Foods, and Gerber and Heinz baby foods, are all seeking non-GMO ingredients for many of their products.

"Until the consumer feels confident in the safety of genetically modified foods, they will continue to refuse to purchase them. Mandatory labeling would have shown these consumers that the food production and processing industry has nothing to hide," said Gary Goldberg, chief executive officer of ACGA. "Whether for the right or wrong reasons, mandatory labels would have, at the very least, instilled consumer confidence in the U.S. food production system."

American agricultural producers are facing continued uncertainty over GMOs. Mandatory labeling would have helped alleviate some of these concerns over on-farm segregation by showing the buying public that foods have been genetically engineered. With GMO labels displayed, the buying public could make decisions for themselves, based on the best available science.

"Somewhere in this whole debate over GMOs, some in the food production and marketing industry have lost sight of consumer choice and consumer rights. According to a Time Magazine poll, 81 percent of the consuming public supports mandatory labeling of their food products. Do American farmers grow for the customer or will they listen to those who take an arrogant attitude and dictate what people should or should not eat? Arrogance toward consumers is the ultimate anti-marketing strategy," said Goldberg.

What does the biotechnology industry have to hide? That is the question the ACGA hears all the time because of the lack of food labels. As long as this suspicion is allowed to fester, consumers will reject GMOs and farmers will incur the increased costs and burdens of segregation, testing, and certification.

The ACGA will continue to work toward the passage of HR. 3377 and S. 2080, the "Genetically Engineered Food Right to Know Act," as introduced by Congressman Dennis Kucinich in the House of Representatives and Sen. Boxer in the Senate. This legislation will move forward a mandatory labeling bill that would do what the FDA lacks the courage to do, noted the ACGA.

"It is not the determination of the ACGA to decide whether genetically modified foods are safe or not. After all, we are not scientists. But as long as the consumers have questions about GMOs, it is best to take a cautious approach to protect our citizens. If mandatory labels will help Americans and foreign countries purchase more of our products, then that is the direction we should take," said Goldberg.

NFU Praises Introduction Of Ethanol/Renewable Fuels Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) recently praised the introduction of the Renewable Fuels Act of 2000, which will increase the demand for products from America's farms.

The bill, introduced by Sens. Tom Daschle, D-S.D.and Richard Lugar, R-Ind., will enact policies that triple the nation's use of ethanol over the next decade, reduce the nation's dependence on foreign oil, and promote clean air and water.

The bill establishes requirements that will increase the renewable fuel content from the current level of 1.3 percent to 3.3 percent by the year 2010. It also sets standards for non-gasoline fuels and promotes the use of renewable alternative fuels such as biodiesel. As well, this legislation provides the Environmental Protection Agency the authority phase out the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) by Jan. 1, 2004.

"Renewable fuels are beneficial to all Americans," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "They decrease our dependence on foreign oil, improve the environment, and provide the opportunity to improve net farm income. I commend Senators Daschle and Lugar for their leadership on this vital issue and their commitment to rural America."

The bill will also enhance and modify clean air and water standards, promote the use of renewable resources in the production of gasoline and other non-gasoline fuels, and provide for the assessments of groundwater degradation due to the polluting effects of MTBE.

"We support this bill because it will increase demand for farm production at a time when farmers are receiving record low prices for their commodities," said Swenson. "Farmers and ranchers, along with the rest of the nation, feel the effects of rising oil prices and see the need for a secure supply of resources. Its introduction comes at a time when the impact of fuel use and production of the environment are of great concern. This bill addresses all of these issues. It is good for producers. It is good for the country."

FAO Studies Potential Benefits, Pitfalls of Biotech

ROME, Italy – The food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), the food agency of the United Nations, stopped short of endorsing biotechnology recently, but called it a potent weapon in the fight to feed the world.

The FAO said genetic engineering could help increase output in agriculture, forestry and fisheries, but said it was aware of the concern about potential risks of biotechnology to health and the environment.

"Biotechnology holds out the possibility of breeding new crop varieties containing greater amounts of vitamins and other nutrients," said Hartwig de Haen, assistant director-general of FAO's Economic and Social Department on the FAO website.

Safety issues related to foods derived from biotechnology include the risk of inadvertently introducing allergens into foods. Environmental risk include cross pollination between biotech crops and non-biotech plants leading to the development of more aggressive weeds with increased resistance to disease. "However, the potential risks of foods derived from biotechnology should not overshadow their potential public health benefits," de Haen said.

In the case of genetically modified organisms (GMOs), FAO urged "a cautious case-by-case approach to determine the benefits and risks of each individual GMO" and to address "the legitimate concerns for the biosafety of each product and process prior to its release."

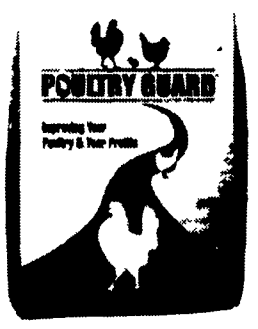
POULTRY GUARD™ LITTER AMENDMENT
New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance. In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower



Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

STOP RAINING ON THE ANIMALS

It has been raining on animals since a horse plowed the first furrow. Condensation forming under the roofs of farm buildings is the reason. And that's because there's never been a perfect insulation product for farm buildings. Until now. Introducing Thermax® AG Therm™ Insulation/Finish Board from Celotex. AG Therm stops the rain and stops the elements.

AG for agriculture. Therm for thermal. It works for all kinds of buildings.

No matter who's in it or what's in it. Install it in new buildings or improve old ones. Celotex made it for you. The animals will thank you. For information where to purchase AG Therm, call Celotex at 1-800-556-4215.
